Make 'Last Ditch' Plea For Relief Funds

Four Anxious Men

Adolf Hitler

Neville Chamberlain

Eduard Benes

Konrad Henlein

On the shoulders of the four men pictured here rests the major bulk of responsibility for a momentous decision—shall there be war or peace in Europe. Following Hitler's inflammatory speech at Nurnberg, Konrad Henlein, Sudeten fueher in Czechoslovakia, hurled a sharp ultimatum demanding abolition of martial law, proclaimed by the Czechs in the Sudeten area after rioting broke out. President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia bluntly refused, sent more troops to the troubled area. Meanwhile in London, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain called an extraordinary session of the British cabinet to decide what more Britain can do to maintain peace—or perhaps to decide that Britain will fight if Germany uses force in the Sudeten area.

CITY, COUNTY OFFICIALS ASK STATE TO HELP

Seek Data on Borrowing Plan at Columbus as Unpaid Bills Hit $50,000.

'KILL 2 BIRDS' AT ONCE

Delegation Will Also Present City's Request for Housing Project at Hearing.

A Mansfield delegation of 12—including city and county officials and business men went to Columbus today to make a "last ditch" appeal to the state for funds to finance the relief load in Richland county.

The purpose of the trip originally was to attend a public hearing on the city's request for a $1,000,000 slum clearance program but officials decided to "kill two birds with one stone" by seeing what could be done about the relief situation.

Confer With Auditor.

The officials will visit the state auditor's office to obtain "more detailed information" on the various borrowing plans by which the city and other sub-divisions of the county might get the necessary funds to pay their relief bills.

With Mansfield's unpaid relief bills mounting towards the $50,000 mark, officials said, a last ditch appeal would be made to the state for assistance.

Those making the trip to the capital with the local housing committee, which includes Chairman George C. Kyle, A. J. Duffy, C. W. Conklin, J. A. Massa, and E B. Kallmerten, were Mayor Claude M. Hunter, Service-Safety Director Earl A. Nist, Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston, Paul W. Williams, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, and County Commissioners C. L. Mitchell, Guy Stewart, and Ray Hout.

Works On Borrowing Plan.

While Madison township is faced with the problem of halting relief assistance because of exhausted funds, the city has been working on a dual borrowing plan in order to obtain $100,000 to finance its relief problem.

Officials however have run into legal technicalities in the plan which calls for the issuance of notes against 70 per cent of the anticipated collection of delinquent taxes. This is to be used to match state funds obtained by issuing notes against 90 per cent of anticipated state taxes through 1941.

6,000 Pupils to Serve as Emissaries In Final Drive for School Bond Issue

MORE than 6,000 letters to parents of Mansfield school pupils with the pupils serving as emissaries . . . a final burst of activity from the P. T. A. organizations . . . a last-minute flood of registrations and address transfers at the board of elections office.

That's how the campaign for the proposed $550,000 school bond issue began the final week before the special election next Tuesday when the issue will be submitted to voters.

Mimeographed letters for each school were being prepared today at Supt. W. L. Miller's office. Pupils will take them home to their parents Friday afternoon.

The letters will outline the purposes of the $1,000,000 school building program, pointing out the advantages to each school in the city, Miller said.

Nearly 200 P. T. A. members were completing their house-to-house visits today in behalf of the bond issue. They are urging persons of voting age to register or transfer with the county board of elections so as to be eligible to vote at Tuesday's election. At the same time, the precinct workers are sounding out sentiment for or against the building program. Sixty-two workers were busy in the First ward alone.

Speakers outlined the program last night at meetings of the Newman, Prospect and Woodland P. T. A. organizations, while other parent-teacher groups were scheduled to meet later in the week.

Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, spoke at the Newman school; W C. Mead, school board member, at

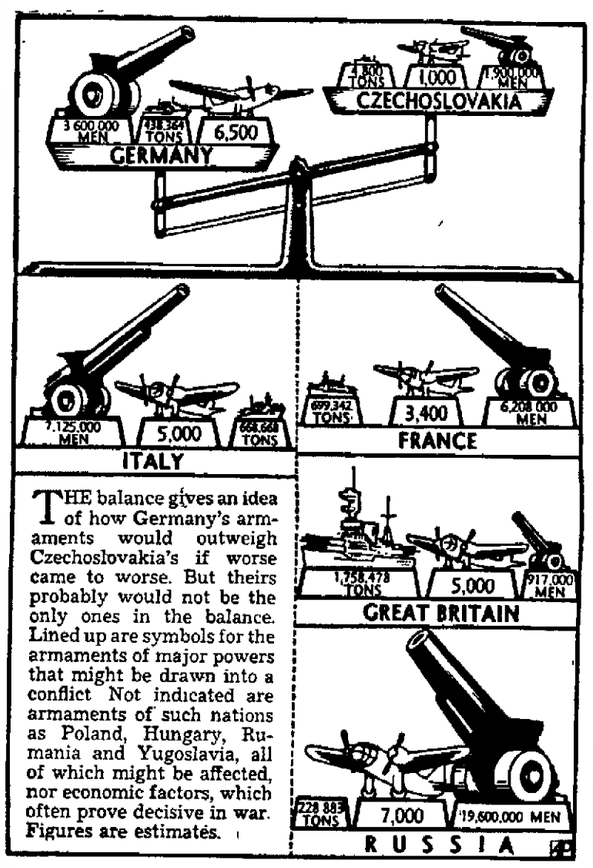
How They Balance



THE balance gives an idea of how Germany's armaments would outweigh Czechoslovakia's if worse came to worse. But theirs probably would not be the only ones in the balance. Lined up are symbols for the armaments of major powers that might be drawn into a conflict Not indicated are armaments of such nations as Poland, Hungary, Rumania and Yugoslavia, all of which might be affected, nor economic factors, which often prove decisive in war. Figures are estimates.

Bulletins On The Crisis

PARIS—(INS)—Discovery of a carefully organized plot by Sudeten Germans to seize their own area and declare immediate anschluss with Germany led to declaration of martial law by Czech authorities, it was stated by a well-informed authority here today.

The Czech government is reluctant to publicize details of the plot, it was said, since it proves "beyond doubt" Germany's direct involvement in the Sudeten dispute.

LONDON—(INS)—The diplomatic correspondent of the London Evening Standard reported today that France has notified Czechoslovakia that she will "mobilize when the Czechs do."

LONDON—(INS)—Great Britain is seeking further clarification from Washington regarding the position of the United States and the neutrality act in event this country become involved in war, The London Evening News reported today.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— The United States will maintain "freedom of action" in the present European crisis, it was learned today on highest authority.

LONDON—(INS)—An urgent, almost frantic, appeal to Sudeten Leader Konrad Henlein to retreat from his defiant attitude and thus save the world from war was dispatched by the British government today. The virtually unprecedented action of sending a direct appeal to the leader of a minority political party was taken by the cabinet of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain. United States Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy called at Downing street soon after the appeal was sent.

PARIS—(AP)—The French government was reported informed quarters today to have completed plans for speedy mobilization of 2,000,000 more men, or eight classes of army reserves, in case a new grave turn in the European situation makes it necessary.

LONDON—(INS)—The London Daily Express reported from Prague today that Czechoslovakian troops are pouring across the country through Sudetenland toward the German frontier.

BRUSSELS, Belgium—(UP)—Fuehrer Adolf Hitler called a conference of all his high military and political chiefs at Berchtesgaden this afternoon, the Belgian ambassador to Berlin informed the foreign office.

GUNS BLAZE AS NAZI ADHERENTS FIGHT SOLDIERS

Shots Set Off Clash While Gendarmes Take Prisoners to Jail; Sudetens Seize Rifles, Machine Guns From Prison's Ammunition Stores.

(By United Press)

EGER, SUDETEN AREA, Czechoslovakia—Open fighting broke out today in the Sudeten area near the border north of Eger, where 2,000 Sudetens armed with machine guns, rifles and pistols battled hundreds of Czech troops and police.

Casualties were heavy. Early in the battle, from 10 to 15 gendarmes had been killed, but it was impossible to estimate the total dead and wounded on both sides as the battle continued.

The action was at the town of Habersparirk, near Falkenau in the Eger district.

(Shortly after news of the battle became known, it was announced in Prague that martial law had been extended to three more Sudeten areas, making 11 now under military rule.)

The smoldering animosity between Sudeten Germans and Czechs, fanned by events since Adolf Hitler's Nurnberg speech Monday night, broke into armed rebellion over what started as a trivial incident.

The Sudeten version was that Communists taunted Sudetens in the center of the town and a scuffle resulted.

Fighting Breaks Out.

Local gendarmes patrolling the streets tried to quiet the disturbance but in a few minutes, free-for-all fighting broke out.

The gendarmes made several arrests and fought their way to the police station.

The mob closed in and surrounded the police station, shouting threats.

A shot rang out from the building. The mob wavered and some started to run, others remaining where they were, uncertain.

Then a hail of bullets came from the building as the gendarmes let go with a raking fusillade.

Several in the crowd fell and others raced for shelter.

Then the mob reorganized and weapons began to appear. They made a mass attack on the station, firing through the windows.

The gendarmes tried to escape through an adjoining building but were shot as they ran out.

Seize Machine Guns.

The Sudetens moved victoriously into the station and began distributing the arms and ammunition which they seized. They were now ready for battle with the addition of two machine guns, cases of hand grenades and 40 rifles, besides plenty of ammunition.

Authorities sent out hurried word for reinforcements to the nearest large centers, Falkenau and Zwodau. Truckloads of gendarmes with machine guns, rifles and grenades raced to the battle scene.

They opened fire into the crowd, but the Sudetens, reinforced with the arms they had captured, returned volley for volley. Several on both sides were killed in the first few minutes of battle.

Then Czech troops arrived in heavy armored cars and attacked the Sudetens from two sides. In addition to mass fighting, there was scattered open fighting and sniping from buildings and other shelter.

The Sudetens said one of the gendarmes wounded in the attack

Book Passage For Home, Americans Told

LONDON—(UP)—The United States consulate is advising Americans in Europe to book passage for home when possible, an official of the consulate said today.

We are advising United States citizens to book passage for home as soon as possible unless their presence in Europe is essential, because of the difficulty of getting passage in the present international situation," he said.

Hitler's Not Yet Ready for 'Decisive Blow,' Nazis Claim

By PIERRE J. HUSS, INS Staff Correspondent.
(Copyright, 1938)

BERLIN—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler apparently has decided that the time is not yet ripe for a showdown on the explosive Sudeten issue, this correspondent was informed by high and usually reliable Nazi quarters today.

Despite his threatening speech at Nurnberg on Monday, when he flatly informed the Sudetens they were entitled to self-determination and that he would see they got it, the fuehrer seemingly has reached the conclusion that the stage is not yet properly set for a decisive blow.

His decision was reported based on hourly reports received during the night from every town and village in the Sudeten region involved in the virtual revolt which followed establishment of martial law by the Prague regime.

Always late to retire and early to rise, the fuehrer kept himself posted throughout last night and today on every development in the danger-laden situation.

His exact whereabouts, however, were unknown. Government headquarters in Berlin and Munich professed ignorance of his movements and plans, but it was learned he spent part of last night in his private apartment in Munich and then proceeded to his mountain villa at Berchtesgaden.

For at least part of this morning, he still was at his picturesque country home in the Bavarian Alps.

Holds Sewage Plant Still an 'Experiment'

Technician Says It Will Take 2 or 3 More Months of Checking to Determine if Design's Okay, Changes Needed.

Mansfield's $300,000 sewage treatment plant, in operation for 18 months, is still an "experimental station," James R. Collier, the city's sewage technician, declared today.

Two or three months more of experimenting will be required before any definite recommendations regarding the design of the plant are forthcoming, Collier said.

"It is still too early to make any recommendations," Collier explained. "Not until we have exhausted all operating experiments will we be in a position to state whether the design of the plant is correct."

Collier, superintendent of the Elyria sewage plant, was reached there by The News-Journal. He made this statement when asked if he thought the design of the sewage treatment plant, where mechanical difficulties have been experienced since the plant was opened in March 1937, was fundamentally correct.

Aware Of Trouble.

Collier said he was aware of the trouble revealed yesterday by J. R. Turner, plant superintendent.

He pointed out that the difficulties in the aerator units was being "experimented" with by en-

BLOW TO G. O. P.

Bricker Leaders Puzzled as Green Backs Sawyer.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The forthright endorsement of Charles Sawyer for governor by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, left supporters of John W. Bricker stunned and perplexed today.

Green's blessing put the camp of Democratic Candidate Sawyer in a position to claim support not only of the A. F. of L. but of its rival labor organization, the committee for Industrial Organization.

While the CIO has not formally endorsed Sawyer, its officials have criticized Bricker, the Republican nominee. During the primary, Sawyer was endorsed by the CIO-Affiliated Labor's non-partisan league.

Bricker, attacking Sawyer and the CIO in a Labor day speech, made what some observers interpreted as an overture toward the A. F. of L. by referring to it as a "thoroughly Democratic organization."

'GETS HER MAN'

Jail Matron Beats Deputies In Capture Of Fugitive.

URBANA, O.—(UP)—Mrs. May McKeever, wife of the Champaign county sheriff, is a jail matron who "always gets her man."

While two deputies were looking for a 17-year-old forger who had escaped from the jail, Mrs. McKeever started out in her automobile to find the fugitive. She picked up George Hitt, a gasoline station operator, and within an hour after his escape the youth was taken into custody on a country road.

Roosevelt Pays Last Visit to Ailing Son at Mayo.

ROCHESTER, Minn. — (INS) — Just before President Roosevelt paid a final hospital visit to his son, James, preparatory to entraining for the east as the ugly spectre of another European war held civilization breathless, Mayo clinic physicians today reported the patient making satisfactory progress.

The bulletin issued at 9 a. m., EST. read:

"Mr. James Roosevelt enjoyed a comfortable night. Although the critical period has not yet passed, we feel that he is making satisfactory progress."

The president's special train left a few minutes later for Washington.

DAM COLLAPSES

Score of Farms Flooded by Southern Ohio Lake Waters.

ATHENS—(INS)—Rainbow lake, built six years ago by the Ray Morrison family in Alexander township by damming Pratts Fort creek, was swept away today when the dam broke.

Water flooded a score of farms along the creek, with heavy damage to crops. A valuable stock of fish was washed away or left dying in the former lake bottom. The lake was half a mile long, 23 feet deep in places and covered 26 acres.

BATTLE OF THE AGES

HARTFORD, Conn.—(AP)—John Kosak, 67, told the court he acted in self defense when he hit Albert Powers, but he received a suspended jail sentence of 10 days. Powers is 97 years old.

Simpson's 'Half-Holiday' Threatens Extra Activities

Curtailed Schedule Caused by State Order to Cut Band, Glee Club and Other Work to Minimum.

John Simpson Junior high school's 1,350 pupils began their "half-holiday" schedule today as the result of a state order closing the third floor of the building, with all their extra-curricular activities endangered.

H. J. Dotson, principal of the school, said that such activities as the band and glee club would be cut to a minimum because of lack of time during the daily four-hour class schedule.

About half the pupils attend classes from 8 to a. m. to noon and the other half from noon to 4 p. m. The majority of these extra activities are supervised during regular school hours.

School Paper Threatened.

The John Simpson Times, school paper, also is threatened by the "half-holiday" schedule, but efforts will be made to organize the staff later in the month and publish the paper if time permits, Dotson said.

Under the order of the Ohio department of Industrial Relations, nine classrooms on the third floor of the school which

Swaney to Go Free Tomorrow After 16 Months in Prison

Roy F. Swaney, 52, onetime star witness against the notorious Licavoli gang and self-confessed bootlegger, will leave the London prison farm a free man tomorrow, after serving slightly more than 16 months of a one to five year sentence after his conviction on a charge of blackmail.

Given his parole last spring by the state parole board, Swaney lived up to the promise he made when he entered Ohio state penitentiary on May 5, 1937.

"I'm going to do my time as quickly as possible and get out," he said then.

Arrested in Toledo in March, 1937, Swaney was found guilty of blackmail by a jury in Richland county common pleas court on April 19, 1937, after a lengthy trial in which the name of former Police Chief Merle D. Unkle was mentioned frequently.

He was convicted specifically on a charge of collecting $20 from Carl Willis, then operator of the Bank cafe, for alleged protection from gambling raids by Mansfield police. During a sensational trial in which city officials were called as witnesses, it was revealed that operators of several gambling clubs in Mansfield had been victims of a "shake-down" to provide "protection" from police raids.

After his commitment to the state penitentiary, Swaney was transferred to the London prison farm because of his good behaviour.

RAIN TO STAY

City and State Drenched by General Downpour.

Drenching rains fell in Mansfield and throughout Ohio today, and were expected to continue tonight and tomorrow, the forecast said.

At noon today, Observer Otto Sprunger reported rainfall during the past 24 hours in the city had totalled .67 inches, which brought the total for the past 48 hours to 1.48 inches

Columbus, however, reported a total of 3.91 inches in an eight-hour period. Traffic lights were put out of commission, and in outlying districts, traffic was impeded by water on the roads.

Late corn crops, however, were expected to benefit by the heavy rains.

Temperatures in Mansfield ranged from a high of 82 yesterday afternoon to a low of 65 last night. At noon today, the reading was 75.

Arkansas Man Confesses Slayings In Three States.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(UP)—Buford Goad, 37, alias Joseph B. Anderson, of Little Rock, has confessed to participation in three murders in as many states, state police announced today.

Have You Registered?

Registered yet?

If not, you still have until 6:30 p. m. today if you want to vote at the special school bond election Tuesday.

Eight clerks and deputies were kept busy until 8 p. m. yesterday, and board of elections office in the courthouse was almost swamped today with registrations and transfers.

It was certain that a new record of registered voters would be set as a result of the Mansfield P. T. A. council's campaign for the school bond issue.

U. S. Business, Finance Set to Meet 'Shock" of War in Europe

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—American business and finance is prepared to meet the shock of general European war in the opinion of leading Wall Street figures and governmental fiscal authorities canvassed today.

Cautious comparisons of the United States business and financial world of today with that of 1914 led to the unanimous opinion of those consulted that this country is much better prepared, in manifold ways, to meet and weather that shock than it was 24 years ago.

President William McC. Martin of the New York stock exchange said before the regular opening time that there was no intention of closing the exchange on the basis of current information from Europe.

His confidence, and that of others consulted, was reassuring to those troubled by the volume of selling at the close of trading yesterday, which forced leading issues down $1 to $6 a share, and which continue in even greater force after the New York close in the San Francisco market.

Business men throughout the country asking what would happen to American business and finance in event of general war in

Georgia Votes Today In New Roosevelt 'Purge' Test

7 INCUMBENT SENATORS ARE RENOMINATED

Tuesday's Primaries Over, Nation Turns Attention to Hectic Southern Fight.

(By Associated Press)

Seven senators won renomination or moved to the front today in primary election returns, but national attention centered on the spectacular Georgia test today of President Roosevelt's campaign against conservative legislators.

Georgia Democrats selected their their senatorial candidate from these men:

Sen. Walter F. George, described by President Roosevelt as out of touch with the "broad objectives" of the Democratic party and the government.

Lawrence S. Camp, federal district attorney in Atlanta, recipient of a presidential blessing.

Former Gov. Eugene Talmadge, who the chief executive said would contribute little to practical government."

Vote on New Deal Foe.

In Connecticut another Democratic senator who has opposed some administration measures was seeking renomination. He was Augustine Lonergan, endorsed by Attorney General Cummings but opposed in a convention by Rep. Herman P. Koppleman and two other aspirants. New Deal policies threatened to become an issue in the race.

They did not enter to any marked degree, however, into seven senatorial selections made yesterday. In four states, the Democratic incumbents were unopposed. They were Sens. Fred H. Brown of New Hampshire, Elbert D. Thomas of Utah, John V. Overton of Louisiana and Alvin B. Adams of Colorado.

In the choices involving contests, Vermont Republicans renominated Sen. Ernest W. Gibson, and Washington Democrats chose Sen. Homer T. Bone over Otto A. Case, a Townsendite. Sen. Carl Hayden, Arizona Democrat, was far ahead of two opponents in incomplete returns.

Voters yesterday showed a general tendency to renominate present house members, but South Carolina was an exception. Rep. John C. Taylor was defeated by Butler B. Hare and Rep G. Heyward Mahon by Joseph R. Bryson in Democratic run-offs.

South Carolina also supplied the most dramatic election incident of the day, when national guardsmen under instruction from Gov. Olin D. Johnson took possession of Charleston county ballot boxes.

Wyndham M. Manning, apparently beaten for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination by Mayor Burnet R. Maybank of Charleston, had asked for the troops because of reported "irregularities."

Wins Close Contest.

In New Hampshire, John L. Sullivan had no opposition for the Democratic nomination for governor. Gov. Francis P. Murphy, wealthy industrialist, apparently won a close Republican contest from Atty. Gen. Thomas P. Cheney.

Rep. Charles W. Tobey held a lead over two rivals in New Hampshire's Republican senatorial race.

Across the state line in Vermont, Gov. George D. Aiken, Republican, won renomination by a wide margin. Democratic aspirants to Vermont's state and national offices had no opposition.

Michigan Republicans called on former Gov. Frank D. Fitzgerald to battle Frank Murphy, Democratic incumbent, for the governorship in November. Murphy was unopposed in the primary.

Partial returns from Colorado gave Gov. Teller Ammons, Democrat, better than a 3-to-2 lead over George J. Knapp. Archibald A. Lee and Ralph L. Carr had no contests for the Republican senatorial and gubernatorial nominations, respectively.

Other Republican senatorial nominees in the west were: Utah, Dr. Franklin S. Harris, president of Brigham Young university; Washington, Ewing D. Colvin, Seattle attorney, and Arizona, Burt L. Olingan, unopposed.

A four-man contest for Arizona's Democratic gubernatorial nomination developed into a tight race, with State Sen. R. T. Jones and Secretary of State James H. Kirby out in front. Jerrie W. Lee had no opposition for the Republican nomination.

BROTHERS FACE ASSAULT CHARGE

Plaintiff Says Trio Beat Him Up; Two Plead Guilty.

Three brothers, Winston, Joseph, and Dewitt Green, colored, all of 7 Lafayette avenue, will face Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch in municipal court tomorrow on charges of assault and battery.

Arraigned this morning, Winston pleaded innocent and the other two guilty. They asked for continuance until tomorrow in order to summon witnesses. Judge Kalbfleisch set hearing for 9:30 a. m. and fixed bond at $150 apiece.

Charges were filed by Clarence Brackings, also colored, of 124½ North Adams street, who testified that the trio beat him up on North Main street last night.

Up and Down THE STREET

Another chain letter craze has struck Mansfield but this time there are no dimes or quarters needed to play the game. A number of Mansfielders have received "Good Luck" letters with instructions to send the original and four copies to friends within 24 hours. The 'luck of Flanders"—there's no hint of what it is—will follow the letters, but it will be a bad omen for the person who receives the letters and fails to keep the chain intact, says the message.

Fifty acres of heavily wooded land, a woodcutter's paradise, was thrown open today to Richland county relief families by Henry Bachus, Monroe township farmer. Bachus said anyone on relief who wants to cut a supply of firewood for the winter is welcome to swing an ax on his property if the woodchopper agrees to clean up the debris he leaves. There will be no charge for the wood. The land is located a short distance southeast of Mansfield on the Upper Lucas road. Bachus said prospective woodcutters must see him before they begin work.

Although he admitted he was a little rusty from not "bowling regularly," P. H. Ober, Mansfield Tire & Rubber company vice president, has not lost his knack of pounding the maples. He proved this last night as he helped the bowlers of his plant open their season. Rolling the first ball, he got 9 out of the 10 pins in addition to a big hand from the crowd. Some years ago Ober ranked as one of the city's leading bowlers.

NEW 'HOT MIX' SUIT NAMES 17

Action Makes More Charges of Collusion, Excessive Prices on Projects.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—More charges of collusion and excessive prices on "hot mix" highway projects were made in a second taxpayers' suit filed in common pleas court today by Mrs. Agnes B. Dickinson, Columbus attorney, who is backed by the Ohio Citizens' Tax Vigilance Committee, Inc.

The suit named as defendants Highway Director John J. Jaster, jr., and four subordinates; State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson, and 17 "hot mix" contractors.

The Hot Mixed Bituminous Industry of Ohio, Inc., association of contractors, was not named a defendant as it was in the original "hot mix" suit seeking to recover $3,000,000 for Ohio taxpayers.

The new case asked the court to enjoin action on 32 new hot mix projects in various parts of the state, contending these will cost $480,000 more than what is "fair and reasonable."

Some of the projects, the suit said, are under way, others are being advertised and still others in process of planning.

Among defendants were: Scully Bros., Cincinnati; Eastern Building Co., Ashtabula; General Asphalt Paving Co., Canton; Cleveland Trinidad Paving Co., and the Cuyahoga Asphalt Paving Ca., both of Cleveland; Ohio Engineering Co., Lorain; Newark Asphalt Paving Co., Newark; Brewer & Brewer Sons, Chillicothe; S. E. Johnson, Toledo; Frowine Construction Co., Portsmouth; Muskingum Valley Asphalt Paving Co., Zanesville; Tri-State Asphalt Corp., Martins Ferry; Churchill Bros., Lima; Batdorf-Martin Co., Upper Sandusky, and Boyd & Cook Co., Dayton.

With tomorrow set as the date for the 1938-39 drivers' licenses to go on sale, the Richland County Automobile club today had not received supplies needed to open the sale, and Frank Beverstock, club secretary, had not been named as deputy registrar to handle the sale of licenses in Mansfield.

Beverstock, however, is expected to be named at a meeting at 7:30 p. m. today in Ashland.

Jack Berger, assistant club secretary, said he did not know when the new license blanks would arrive. Last year they did not arrive until the opening day of sale, he said.

Deputy registrars in two nearby counties were named this morning by Frank West, state registrar of motor vehicles. Those named are: Morrow county, Lena Ladd, Cardington; Grace Lemley, Mt. Gilead, and J. M. Porter, Marengo. Crawford county, Fred Trautman, Bucyrus, M. B. Morrisey, Auto club, Bucyrus; Addie Blicker, Auto club, Crestline; H. J. Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

REPORT SHOWS REQUESTS FOR AID DECREASING

Total Cost for Month $14,266; Number on WPA Work Rolls Soars to 1,213.

While city officials wrestled with the financing problem, a bright side of the relief picture was revealed today by Relief Director J. V. Finney whose monthly report to Mansfield and Madison township officials showed that costs had dropped to a new low for the year.

Costs of aid in Mansfield and Madison township dropped $2,700 last month when 1,206 families were provided with food, clothing and fuel, the report showed.

The amount spent for relief was $14,226, or $2,714 less than the July expenditures which totaled $16,980. However, in the $2,714 reduction, more than 50 per cent was saved in Madison township where families on relief have been issued only 50 per cent orders for the past month.

Less than one-tenth of the total cost was for administration, according to Finney, who listed case workers salaries and other administrative costs at $1,124. Non-administrative costs of $1,287 included a WPA sewing project, purchase of federal surplus commodities and the salary of the relief examiner.

947 Cases in City.

Approximately one-seventh of costs $1,567 provided assistance for 259 families in Madison township while Mansfield spent $10,286 to care for its 947 indigent cases.

A decided decrease in applications for relief was shown in both Mansfield and the township with 75 persons applying during August as compared with 300 in July. Of this number 68 became active cases

Certification of WPA applicants also dropped from 232 in July to 159 during August, all of which are waiting assignments. The report showed that there are now 1,213 persons employed on WPA projects in the county, one of the highest figures since WPA was instituted.

During the past month the administration distributed more than 70,000 pounds of surplus commodities purchased from the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation.

The county relief report showed that only nine of the 18 townships in the county, exclusive of Madison, last month participated in the relief program.

Of these Springfield township spent $281 for 27 families, Monroe township $186, Bloomingrove $81, Cass $79, Jefferson $44, Plymouth $64, Troy $63, and Worthington $47.

Shelby with a case load of 53 families spent $575 during the month, Finney reported.

FAIR ENOUGH!

You Think You Can Beat the Races? This'll Help You Change Your Mind!

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—A long time ago Mr. Ed Bradley, the gambling man, in a great blurt of kindly wisdom, told me, "You can't beat the races." This was unimportant information to one who rarely makes the effort, but, a bit of a skeptic, I long wondered whether his advice would stand the test of practical experiment.

On the basis of research covering four consecutive days of last week at the Aqueduct track I yield to Mr. Bradley's judgment. The authority known as Consensus, being the refined and combined opinion of the best minds of horse journalism, made 28 predictions. One horse was scratched. Five gallant chargers won their races. Five ran second and five ran third. This is indeed excellent picking — fifteen horses in the money in 28 races.

But a program of $10 wagered across the board on each horse picked to win would have yielded a net loss of $242.15. Had the horses been backed to win at $10 apiece, with regard for second or third money, the loss would have been $93.50.

Each day the consensus selects a horse as the one steed most likely to win his race. This selection is known as the "best bet." In the four days only one "best bet" won his race, and that one paid only $9 to $20—a yield of $4.50 to offset losses of $30 on the three other "best bets," leaving a net loss on "best bets" of $25.50.

We begin with the program for last Wednesday, in which Consensus delivered a winner at 7 to 1, the only really profitable venture of the entire experiment. The "best bet" ran fifth, and the score for the day at $10 across the board, was plus $10.50. On the nose, at $10 a race, the profit was $20.

Thursday was exasperating. Consensus picked the winners of the first two races at $11 to $5 and even money, respectively, but his steed ran second in the third race, third in the fourth and out of the money in the last three heats. Notwithstanding his having picked two winners and four horses in the money in seven stabs, Mr. Consensus sent his clients home with a loss of $56.20 had they bet $10 across the board. Or had they backed his selections just to win they were out $18 apiece.

Friday was just a bad day. The first three selections by Consensus ran out of the money and the fourth horse finished third, paying the demure return of $5 to $10. The fifth horse won, but the odds were bleak. He paid $30.30 for an investment of $30 across, and the next two horses dawdled like the first three. The day's loss across the board was $134.70. On the nose the loss was $40.

Saturday Consensus was in there fighting all afternoon. His first two horses ran second, his third ran third, his fourth was second and his fifth won. The fifth, incidentally, was the only "best bet" that delivered the mail in this experimental spell, but it was a mere postcard that he fetched, and one looked for a postage-due stamp on it.

Risking $10 to win $4.50 on a horse race in which, as the gamblers are fond of saying, there are more than 50 well-known accidental factors against victory by the greatest steed that ever ran, is hardly more attractive as a speculation that Mr. Henry Morgenthau's treasury mavourneens.

The loss on the day across the board came to $61.75, with six out of seven horses in the money. The loss to a player who had bet the Consensus on the nose from top to bottom of the program would have been $55.50, marked down from $60 only by the cold generosity of the bookmakers in the fifth race.

The prophets of horse journalism are earnest students of their stuff, and it is no fault of theirs that the bookmakers and—at the mutuel tracks—the soulless gears and gadgets that grind the soul and bone of man let down so meagerly when horses of their picking win the heats. Yet, as Mr. Bradley also said, it isn't beating the races to beat some races. For what profiteth it a sucker that he beat five races out of 27, with saving bets on 10 critters in consolation spots, and come to the end of his venture with a deficit proportioned to $242.15?

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change of life (ages from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells:

Get Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life.

Pinkham's is WELL WORTH trying.

Miss Isabel Barry Will Be First Guest of Mansfield Women Sept. 22 at Luncheon, Card Party at Club.

THE eagerly awaited schedule of events for the Mansfield Federation of Women is just off the press, and reveals a series of exciting lectures coupled with social events throughout the winter and early spring months.

Starting activities a bit earlier than other organizations, the federation will entertain Miss Isabel Barry, Cleveland, at the first session at the Women's Club Sept. 22. Miss Barry, a decorator and expert on lighting, will be presented on a double program. Her subject will be "Modernizing the Existing Home."

The lecture will be at 11 a. m. followed by luncheon and cards at 1 p. m. In October the club will bring Mrs. Herbert F. White, Dayton, to Mansfield to lecture on Denmark. Mrs. White has spent a number of years in that country, and is considered an authority. Her talk will be given at a federation meeting and directors' tea.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Sept. 15.

According to the lunar transits of this day, there may be a rather unpropitious and unhappy state of affairs, with much to give concern and uncertainty. There may be much of a reckless, impulsive and tempestous nature, with tendencies to use expediency or "smartness" in trying situations or temptations. Papers may cause anxiety and speculation. Rash use of funds may bring grave predicaments.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of anxiety, loss and unhappiness unless they exercise restraint and rigid control, shunning rash and impetuous conduct, reckless use of money and carelessness with writings and papers. There may be many temptations to do the easiest thing rather than the right one.

A child born on this day may be alert, ardent and may be carried to great lengths of speech and conduct by its impetuosity, zeal and audacity. And, while well-meaning, it may plunge into extravagance, show, losses and difficulties of a regrettable nature. It should be taken in hand in infancy for training and discipline.

My Neighbor Says:

Cauliflower is attractive only when it is properly bleached so that the heads have a pleasing creamy white color. This bleaching is best done by tying the outside leaves loosely together at their tips and watching the growth of the plant to make sure the heads, or curds as they are called, are kept in the shade. Sometimes the leaves are fastened together with nails, but it is better to tie them with raffia. Cauliflower will lose its snowy whiteness and become pink if it is overcooked or cooked in a covered utensil. It should be allowed to boil three minutes and then plunged into cold water until thoroughly cool. Then it should be returned to the boiling water and kept there for 15 minutes.

A few dates, raisins, figs or nuts added to the cooked cereal frequently tempt the lagging appetite of the school child. A bit of jelly or jam placed on top may also do the trick.

Has your aluminum ware become discolored? Try this method of "restoring" it: In the discolored utensil place six lemon halves from which the juice has been removed. Fill it with water and let the water and lemon halves simmer for 25 minutes. Drain, and then wash the utensil in warm water and soap suds. You'll find it will shine like new.

Want to save time and effort on hot summer days? Cook potatoes and vegetables in "double batches." You may then use them in all sorts of creamed, escalloped, or browned combinations, as well as in stews or salads.

Engagements Not Binding As Marriage

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

The morning's mail has brought a controversial letter from a girl of 22. She says the reason that her fiance, who is 30, is so fussy about her working in an office, or receiving even civilities from other men, is that he's already had his fling.

Against this gentleman's wishes she's kept her job as a stenographer in a large firm. Sometimes when business keeps the office force after hours, several of them, men and women, dine together. On one occasion, after such a dinner, a single man once saw her home. Immediately thereupon the fat was in the fire.

At Christmas, the head of the firm, a gentleman well past 60, gave each of the office staff a check for $10. Her fiance wanted her to return the check, saying it was an improper gift, though 14 other employes had taken it without a qualm. All said and done, the fiance wants her to resign immediately.

He also thinks that an engagement is as binding as marriage; the girl says he's that way because he's been a great ladies' man all his life and has been engaged once before. She has never been engaged, and imagines his strict ideas come from having seen much more of sophisticated life than she has.

Do I think, she asks, that an engagement is as binding as marriage?

I wouldn't be in the least surprised if this gentleman found himself with another broken engagement on his hands, for the girl signs herself "Fed-Up."

The difference between an engagement and marriage, to my way of thinking, is about the same as the difference between an option and a deal that has been signed, sealed and delivered. No. I do not think an engagement is as binding as the marriage ceremony.

A generation or two ago a person who broke an engagement was called a "jilt," a term that nice people liked to avoid. A jilted girl was a to-be-pitied creature, branded before the world as an undesirable with whom her affianced husband has broken faith. Can't you imagine the everlasting why, why, why that went around the sewing circle?

Similarly, a man whose girl "went back on him at the altar" (they always made it sound as bad as possible) was regarded as a "marked-down" article, no matter how worthy he might have been.

But today, if we find ourselves engaged to the wrong person, we back out of it as gracefully as possible.

I don't know whether the man of whom my correspondent writes has had his fling or not. But the flingers of life, when they do settle down, are inclined to be more straight-laced than those with less experience. A man who objects to a girl having dinner with a group of fellow employes or being seen home safely by another is patently a good deal of an Othello.

Imagine the figure that a miss of 22 would cut in returning a little check to the head of the firm which 14 others took with thanks. Decidedly, she would be implying some sort of Frankie-and-Johnny business, which would make her seem rather ridiculous. If these two young people marry eventually, there'll have to be considerable adjustment in their different points of view if they want to be happy.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

AT LILLIAN'S provocative remark that she, not Olga, was the "dame he wanted to see, the guilty party, he wheeled, looked at her keenly for an instant, and then said significantly:

"Aha! I thought so. Nobody else, save Mrs. Graham's father, could have done it. Will you deign me an explanation?"

"Why! of course, Darling! Come here, Harry—she beckoned to her big husband who had just appeared in the doorway—"and help me spin Phil the saga of our spiriting royalty away from the hospital. But you really must sit down, Phil. It's quite a long story."

"How are you old chap? Hello Noel?" The big man's hand went out to each in turn, and then he pushed a chair invitingly near Mr. Veritzen. "Better follow my wife's advice. I've found it good policy, for lo! these many years."

Mr. Veritzen hesitated perceptibly, then sank into the chair.

"I warn you I haven't much time," he said.

Tells of Escape.

"We'll make it snappy," Lillian replied, and plunged forthwith into the story of their taking the royal women away from the hospital, as she already had told it to me. When she had finished, her old friend looked at her speculatively, the glimmer of a wintry smile playing around his lips before he spoke.

"I received a full description from the hospital officials of the persons who came for the queen," he said. "I have but one inference—"

"The correct one," Lillian retorted with a wide grin. "D'ye think we could run any risk of having any casual scrutiny of yours recognize us if our cars had happened to pass each other? We knew, of course, that we could not hope to fool you if we came face to face—you are too keen for that—but we flattered ourselves that if your car happened to meet or pass ours on the road, especially as we had a driver, that we would pass muster."

"May I inquire," Philip Veritzen asked frostily, with no hint of a smile now, "why you wished to 'pass muster'? You have no quarrel with me, surely."

"My Dear Phil!" Lillian's tone was warmly affectionate. "That crack isn't worthy of you. But we had a job to do. We knew that you'd take a lot of explaining and argument before you'd let Olga and Olina go, and we simply didn't have a minute's extra time. The chief was most insistent upon the utmost haste. We couldn't risk a minute's delay."

Philip Veritzen's eyebrows had risen at Lillian's reference to "Olga and Olina," but I knew that even his arrogance did not extend to taking Lillian to task for her mannerism.

"I understand," he said at last, "and I am very grateful to you, of course. But I must insist upon taking the queen and the princess"—he emphasized the titles—"to some safer place than this. Will you please ask the queen if she can give me an audience?"

He turned to me, and I had hard work to repress a laugh at the stilted phrase.

"I am afraid that will be impossible," I said quietly.

He drew himself up with hauteur.

"Impossible?" he repeated. "Do you mean that your father is keeping her incognito? But—he could not do that."

"You forget, Phil Darling," Lillian said, "that the chief can do anything—pretty nearly—that his little heart desires. But, as it happens, the prohibition did not come from him, but from Mrs. Bickett, the nurse taking care of the queen. Olga arrived here in a state of complete collapse and swooned as soon as she came inside the house. Mrs. Bickett is taking care of her, she has allowed nobody inside the room save Olina."

"I want to see Mrs. Bickett," he said shortly.

"Why! of course," I said quickly, rising and moving toward the door. "I'll ask her at once to come down."

I was half way to the door when a second request stopped me.

"Will you please bring the princess back with you?" he asked imperatively.

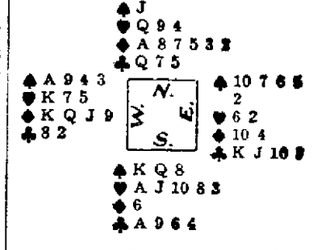
"The Authority on Authorities"

POSTPONING TRUMPS

WHETHER to run trumps at once or postpone them, or perhaps not lead them at all, constitutes the main difference between the several styles of play used for suit contracts. Incidentally soundness in this respect frequently marks the difference between weak and strong players. Refraining from trump leads can be as important with some hands as leading them is in others.



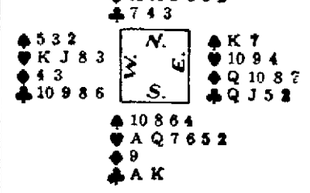
(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.

North and South ended in a contract of 4-Hearts on this deal. The bidding started with South's 1-Heart, which West overcalled with 1-Spade; North called 2-Diamonds, East 2-Spades, South 3-Hearts and North 4-Hearts.

South handled the play very badly and was set two tricks. He won the lead of the diamond K with the A and finessed the heart 10, which lost to West's K. The heart 5 was returned and declarer then led the spade J. When West won, he returned his last trump. This was taken by South with the A. He then cashed the spades K and Q, discarding two clubs, but had no way to avoid losing three clubs in his own hand.

Instead of drawing trumps, after winning the first trick, South should have led the spade at once. The spades K and Q would then be used to toss off two clubs in dummy, and while still retaining trumps in dummy, two clubs could have been ruffed.

Tommorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

How should North plan his hand to make 6-Spades, the opening lead having been the club 2?

Crumbs Add To Taste and Appearance

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

DON'T LET your crumbs "fall from the rich man's table." Collect them, save them and use them. Crumby little dishes are mighty good. There are crumb puddings and crumb casseroles and croquettes rolled in crumbs. Crumbs, mind you, may be of cake or bread, or cornflakes or other cereal, or even of nuts. A crumb is anything reduced to minute size, adaptable for a coating. So here are some recipes that are crumbs of wisdom, especially for you!

Brazil nut croquettes are made with two cups hot mashed potatoes, one-quarter cup cream or milk, one-half teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, pepper and one cup crushed Brazil nuts. To the hot potatoes, add the cream or milk, baking powder, seasoning and half the nuts. Spread mixture on plate and cool. Shape, roll in nuts and cook in deep, hot cooking oil 390 F. or until golden brown. Drain on soft paper.

Apricot Crumbles.

Apricot crumbles with coffee sauce is a new and delightful dessert. Crumbles require two cups canned apricots (drained), one-quarter cup butter, one-half cup flour, one-quarter cup brown sugar, few grains salt and two drops almond extract. Cut apricots in pieces and arrange in bottom of baking dish. Cream butter, add flour, brown sugar, salt and almond extract; blend well. Cover apricots with crumbed mixture. Bake in moderate oven (375 F.) for 30 minues until apricots are heated and crumbs well browned. Serve warm with coffee sauce. The sauce requires one-half cup sugar, one tablespoon cornstarch, few grains salt, one cup hot, freshly-brewed coffee, two tablespoons butter and one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg if desired. Blend sugar, cornstarch and salt; add coffee. Cook in double boiler or over low heat until it thickens. Add butter and nutmeg and cool.

Stuffed Eggplant.

Stuffed eggplant is a delicious vegetable, an answer when something different is suggested. Ingredients include one egg plant, one cup soft bread crumbs, two tablespoons cooking oil, one tablespoon finely chopped onion, salt and pepper, one-third cup browned crumbs. Cook egg plant 15 minutes in boiling water to cover. Cut slice from top and remove the pulp. Chop pulp and add one cup soft, stale bread crumbs. Heat oil, and add finely-chopped onion. Cook two minutes. Add pulp, season with salt and pepper and, if necessary, moisten with a little stock or water. Cook five minutes. Fill egg plant and cover with browned crumbs. Bake in 450 F. oven for 25 minutes.

Sour cream gives a delicious flavor to chicken or meat gravy.

THEATER

MORE than 1,000 fans have written Warner Bros. studios suggesting that the recent steam-scalding death of convicts would make a dramatic subject for a film expose on prison conditions. Scenarists were working on the idea before letters arrived, and the dark chapter in American prison history will be written into the script of "Each Dawn I Die," the new co-starring picture for James Cagney and Edward G. Robinson.

"The Affairs of Annabel."

Publicity as practiced by a hay-wire press agent in Hollywood forms the basis of "The Affairs of Annabel," opening at the Madison theater tomorrow. Jack Oakie and Lucille Ball are co-starred in the film which describes a series of Oakie's stunts to popularize his studio's foremost star, Miss Ball. Ruth Donelly and Thurston Hall support the two. "Three Loves Has Nancy," with Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery and Franchot Tone plays through today.

"Mother Carey's Chickens."

Anne Shirley, Ruby Keeler, Jackie Moran and Donnie Dunagan play the quadruple title roles in "Mother Carey's Chickens," the picturization of Kate Douglas Wiggin's novel, opening tomorrow at the Ohio. The story traces the heart-tugging experience of a fatherless New England family during the period just after the Spanish-American war. Also in the cast are Fay Bainter and Walter Brennan. Sonja Henie and Richard Greene in "My Lucky Star," is today's attraction.

Baxter In New Role.

Warner Baxter, who reached stardom as a western player, plays an entirely new role in "Vogues of 1938," at the Majestic. Joan Bennett is co-starred with Baxter in a story which centers around the owner of a fashion house and a beautiful New York socialite who jilts a millionaire on her wedding day to become a mannequin. Contributing to the plot are Baxter's wife (Helen Vinson) and her manager, Jerome Cowan. "Strange Boarders," with Tom Walls completes the double feature.

Plays Through Thursday.

"The Birth of a Baby," which opened at the Ritz theater Tuesday will close a three-day engagement tomorrow. The film is not a picture of charts and lectures, but a story that builds up interest to the climax of the sequences showing the actual birth of a baby.

"Under the Big Top."

The love story of a great aerial star is the theme of "Under the Big Top," one of the features on the opening program at the new Park theater at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow. The plot follows the fortunes of a circus from its rise as an obscure outfit to the most famous show in the world—all through the efforts of a girl who grows up with the circus. Heading the cast are Anne Nagel and Grant Richards. "Army Girl," with Madge Evans and Preston completes the twin bill through Saturday.

Forward Pass, Field Goal Used Effectively in Initial National League Games.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

JUDGING from what transpired on the gridirons last Sunday, Joe Carr's National pro football league is headed for its greatest year offensively.

Gauthier

The forward pass and field goal were used as scoring threats even more than ever, according to statistics covering the opening week of play.

No team was blanked in the initial games as an average of 37 points a game was piled up, 11 points better than the average of any preceding year.

Of the 25 touchdowns scored in five games, 14 were the direct result of forward passes. Six field goals were kicked.

Forward passing efficiency reached a new high for the opening week of play when 44 per cent of all aerials thrown were completed. Washington, mind you, completed 13 out of 18 aerials.

The Mansfield residence of one of the greatest basketball stars in Notre Dame history ends Thursday. We refer to Paul Nowak, who is concluding a training period of three weeks at the Firestone service station.

A June graduate, Nowak was twice named to the All-American basketball collegiate basketball team. He held down the center post for the Irish three years.

Nowak, along with a collegiate teammate, Johnny Moir, will play with the Firestone court club in Akron next winter, and takes over new duties in the Rubber City this week-end.

Early in November, Nowak and the other 1937-38 All-Americans will go to Hollywood to make a motion picture.

Ohio State Strong On Defense, Too.

NOTED during the past four years under Coach Francis Schmidt for its spectacular offensive style, Ohio State's football team is revealed to have been among the nation's strongest offensive elevens in the 1937 season in a nation-wide comparative statistical survey released recently by the American Football Statistical bureau.

Schmidt's ability as a defensive tactician is apparent in the eighth place rating given by the bureau to the Bucks in a table on total team defense against both rushing and passing. Highest other position was eleventh in team punting.

In assembling the figures, the bureau gave no attention to won and lost records, nor the relative difficulty of schedule. In this respect it differs entirely from the usual "dope" ratings and to date is the nearest approach to mathematical certainty in investigation of comparative team strength.

Ohio State's rating in the final team summary of nation-wide total team performance is No. 17 arrived at by the bureau's unique correlation of the various findings. The final table is curiously accurate, showing Pittsburgh at the top of the heap. The only Western conference team listed ahead of the Bucks is Minnesota defending champion.

Coach George Gauthier of Ohio Wesleyan last fall lambasted Marshall, a rival league foe, and scorned certain "methods" which he claimed the West Virginia school used to attract pigskin talent. His views haven't changed on the latter point. "I don't want to brew another feud," he said, "but I don't believe Marshall always lives up to the standards of the Buckeye."

Zuppke Comes Up With New Wrinkle.

KNOWN for his ingenuity Coach Bob Zuppke of Illinois father of the huddle, now comes up with the "double huddle." Here is how it works: The center meets the quarterback just outside the group of nine other players receives the goal and darts back to his position over the ball. The quarterback then gives the cue to the others and a second huddle is formed in "V" shape and at another signal leap to their respective positions.

Zuppke says it speeds play eliminates "Mexican generals as there will be virtually no checking of signals after the center has taken his position and it also sets up a shift. We come out of the huddle in a hurry and no doubt will cause some confusion for the opposition."

BUDGE TACKLES HARE AFTER ONE DAY'S REST

NEW YORK—(NNS)—After a day of inactivity because of rain play was resumed in the national tennis championships today with Don Budge, America's ace, opposing Charles Hare of Great Britain in a feature attraction.

In the women's divisions, Miss Alice Marble, the Californian who is considered a likely titlist, faces Miss Dorothy Stevenson of Australia.

Johnson Replaces Nash as West's Headman

BOBBY NASH, one of the greatest of Ohio schoolboy halfbacks last fall, will be among the missing when the Akron West Cowboys invade Stadium field Saturday to engage the Mansfield High Tygers in the opening game of the season for both schools.

Nash has gone the way of all seniors, and to say that Coach Russ Beichley will miss the colored flash is putting it mildly.

It was Nash's great play which enabled the Cowboys to win the Akron city title in 1936 and repeat last fall, and, according to reports, from the Mansfield foe's camp, Beichley has found no Nashes in the current crop of candidates.

However, Beichley has never failed to turn out crack teams at West high, and this year is not expected to be an exception.

West is again expected to feature a passing attack against the Tygers, but whether it will be as dangerous as last year's remains to be seen.

The Cowboys still have the latter half of the Nash-to-Johnson passing combination in uniform, and Jimmy Johnson, also colored, is an adept receiver, one of the best in Akron high school circles.

Johnson is one of few lettermen returning at West, and is big and fast. He will probably be used considerably in end-around plays the same as he was last year.

Out at Mansfield high, Coach Russ Murphy continues to drive his charges in preparations for the opener. Murphy is particularly anxious to tighten the Tygers' aerial defense.

Madison Gets Ready For Sunbury Tussle

Fendrick Stresses Defensive Work In Drills to Be Concluded With Night Workout Thursday.

WITH a week of workouts behind them, the Rams of Madison high school today shaped up well enough to make Coach Al Fendrick an optimist instead of a pessimist.

Mind you, Fendrick is not predicting another undefeated season for the Mid-State league title defenders, but he has been impressed by the improvement the Rams have shown this week.

Outlook Not Gloomy.

Fendrick doubts whether the Rams will look like champions in their first appearance against Sunbury at the Madison stadium Friday night, but "they should come along all right," he indicated.

Madison fans will be offered an opportunity to witness the Rams in practice when they conclude preparations for Sunbury under the lights at 8 p. m. Thursday. Fans are invited to witness the practice.

Fendrick this year is working with the largest squad assembled since 1933, but the team as a whole is not in the condition that the coach demands.

Defensive work is being stressed in drills this week. But due to sluggish blocking, the offense is not being disregarded entirely.

No definite lineup has been arranged by Fendrick, but the chief battles for positions involve Bud Barber and Doug De Nero at right end, Jim Robinson and Mel Harner at left guard, Russ Price, Ed Nalezinek and Lewis Danison at right guard and Chuck Backensto and Bob Matthes at blocking half.

Show Up Well.

Bright spots on the drills have been the kicking of Capt. Joe Miller and Gene Harmon and the general all-around play of the Wilkins twins, Bob and Bill.

Madison will average in the vicinity of 150 pounds, which is about seven pounds lighter than last year's team, Fendrick stated.

Red Ruffing At Last Wins 21 Ball Games

Beats Cleveland, 7 to 1, to Beat Own Record.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK—(UP)—Charlie the Red Ruffing woke up out in Cleveland today and anxiously inquired: "I really did win that 21st game didn't I? It wasn't a dream, was it?"

The Yankees hastened to reassure Ruffing that he did pitch his 21st triumph yesterday by letting the Cleveland Indians down with eight hits in scoring a 7-1 victory. The assurance was sweet music to Ruffing's ears because for 15 long years he's been trying to get over the 20-game hump. He's flirted around it several times, but something always happened to halt him. Last year and the year before he won 20 games but he couldn't get No. 21.

Increases Lead.

The triumph increased the Yanks' lead to 16 games and put them in sight of the promised land. They need any combination of five, either Yankee victories or Red Sox defeats to eliminate Boston and any combination of six, either Yankee victories or Indian losses to eliminate Cleveland. Detroit already is mathematically eliminated.

The Tigers won their sixth straight by clubing out a 9-3 win over the Red Sox.

Washington and Chicago divided, with the Senators taking the opener, 7-1, and the White Sox grabbing the nightcap, 3-2.

The Chicago Cubs muffed a chance to gain on the idle Pirates in the National league race by losing to the Boston Bees, 5-2. Jim Turner held the Cubs to four hits and won his 13th game. The Bees rapped Clay Bryant for 11 hits, with Elbert Fletcher getting "4 for 4," a triple, double and two singles. The defeat dropped the Cubs four games from the top or worse still, six games behind on the losing side.

Rain Halts Play.

The other three first division clubs were rained out yesterday and will stage doubleheaders today with the Pirates tangling with the Giants and the Reds playing the Dodgers.

Art Murray, director of student aid at Wooster college, will be the principal speaker at the City Class A softball league banquet to be held at G. B. U. park at 1 p. m. Sunday. Sam Hollingsworth, president of the circuit, announced today.

An interesting talker, Murray was a member of the coaching staff at Wooster until two years ago when he assumed his present position. Prior to going to Wooster, Murray served as head football, basketball and baseball coach at Ashland college for two years.

He held the basketball coaching position at Wooster college for 12 years. In 1926 while Coach Boles was in California, Murray served as head gridiron mentor at Wooster.

Only a limited number of tickets will be available to league followers, Hollingsworth said. They will be on sale at the Lehman-Miller restaurant, Beeber-Ross lunch, Neil Maxwell's and Farst barber shop until Thursday.

Semi-Pro Gridders Open At League Park Sunday

Siler's Eleven to Pry Off Lid With Akron Shamrocks; Ex-Tygers Signed.

THIS will be a big week-end for Mansfield football fans. On Saturday, the Mansfield high Tygers inaugurate their season with Akron West, and Sunday the Mansfield semi-pro club will go into action at League park.

The semi-pros' opening foe will be the Akron Shamrocks. Although little is known about the Shamrocks' strength this year, they have been ranked with the stronger Akron teams for several seasons.

Coach Rabbit Siler is pleased with the way the semi-pros are shaping up in their drills at the Fairground. He believes he has the nucleus for a winning ball club.

Strengthen Club.

In addition to the better semi-pro players in the city, the Mansfield team's lineup includes a number of out-of-town stars.

Siler has signed Pete Risser, a former all-N. C. O. lineman of Ashland high; Fleiner, who starred for the Crestline Merchants for several years, and Powers of Elyria. The players now working out follow:

ENDS—Hummel, Osgar, Young and Rachel; TACKLES—Fleiner, Mullins, Lehr and Schadek; GUARDS — Bucher, McGinnis, Rudrick, Kilzer and Risser; CENTERS—La Rue and Wendling; BACKS—Siler, Vern Heiser, Majoy, Powers and McKane

Majoy, Kilzer and Bucher were stars on recent Mansfield high school teams.

Chipped Bone in Elbow Puts Allen on Shelf.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The pitching arm that brought Johnny Allen 15 consecutive victories in 1937 is through for the season because of a chipped bone in the elbow.

The Cleveland Indians' management announced last night that x-ray examination disclosed the nature of an injury believed sustained as lantern jawed Johnny, mainstay of Pilot Oscar Vitt's hurling staff, pitched to Ducky Medwick of the St. Louis Cardinals in the July all-star game. Allen will return to his St. Petersburg, Fla., home for a "long rest" prescribed by his doctors.

Mt. Gilead Hit By Graduation

Indians' Offense to Be Built Around Lee.

MT. GILEAD—A perennial contender in the Mid-State league, Mt. Gilead high school grid team this year again promises to make it tough for opponents, but followers of the team are not entertaining serious championship hopes.

The Indians will be much lighter than usual this season, the weights ranging from 135 to 165 pounds. They open at Galion Friday night.

Mt. Gilead's offense this season will be built around Lee, who held down a tackle position last year. England, McPeek and Craven are expected to fill out the backfield.

The probable lineup of the line has Burson and either Tennent or N. Smith at the ends, Dye and Whipple or Batchelor at the tackles, McClelland and Blahney at the guards and Lampson at center.

Graduation cost the Indians such outstanding performers as Talmadge, Fissel, Smith, Cline, Kubbs, Weller and Wolf. Talmadge, Kubbs and Weller won all-Mid-State league recognition last fall.

Lettermen back this year are Burson, M. Dye, McClelland, Lampson, Blahney, Lee, England and Craven.

MANSFIELD BOXERS MIX IN CRESTLINE TONIGHT

A number of Mansfield boxers will appear on the amateur boxing card in the Crestline city hall tonight. The main bout will feature Phil Ganni, Crestline high school grid star, and Kid VeHock of Norwalk.

Mansfielders to appear on the card are Young Miller, Tom Clemens, Paul Carbetta, and Beauford Glover.

18 TIRE FACTORY TEAMS SHOVE OFF

Applan, Haley and Schmidt Set Scoring Pace In Opening Night of League at Meder Alleys.

BOWLERS in the inter-factory league launched their 1938-39 season with 18 teams at the Meder Recreation alleys last night.

Scoring honors for the opening night of bowling went to Jack Applan, who collected 227-193-219—639. However, his team, the Foremen, dropped three decisions to the Inspectors.

Haley of the Tire Service team hit a middle game of 224 and finished with a 213 for a 630. The Servicemen blanked the Main Office.

The other 600 total was furnished by Schmidt of the Air Bags No. 1. He opened with a 225 and finished with a 203 to reach the 618 figures, but the Air Bags dropped a pair to the Tire Room.

Best Team Count.

The best team count was an even 2400 turned out by Main Office No. 1, which swept its series with the Product Development quintet.

In the other opening matches, the Columbia Warehouse took two from the Shipping Department, White Side Wall won three from the Air Bags No. 2, Mill Room hung up two wins at the expense of Maintenance, Curing Room No. 1 swept up the Breaker Assembly, and Curing Room No. 2 annexed three against the Factory Office.

P. H. Ober, vice president and general manager of the plant, threw the first ball to open the season.

Gus Moreland Gains Oakmont Medal Honors

Amateur Starts Match Play After Losing to Par.

By JUDSON BAILEY

OAKMONT, Pa.—(AP)—"Needling" began today at the ordeal of Oakmont as 64 survivors of qualifying play in the national amateur golf championship gave up trying to break through the invincible fortress of par and started slicing their own number.

With two quick death rounds of 18-hole match play programmed, the field will quarter itself to 16 by nightfall.

Par Tough to Beat.

The golfing gang which uncovered only two scores of less than par 72 in two days of blasting—one 70 and one 71 yesterday—had new problems in the psychological factors of man against man.

A sleeper in the person of Gus Moreland, a Texan transplanted to Peoria, Ill., led the qualifying parade with a 76-70—146 while the gallery and other contestants were busy watching the first day's mushroom heroes.

Trailing him home was little Willie Turnesa of New York City who had a 71 and failed by two throws to tie for medalist honors because of the burden of a 77 chalked up in Monday's literally stormy session.

Pairings cast them today against opponents who squeezed into the match play 11 and 12 strokes off the pace—little Bobby Dunkleberger, the North Carolinian in the one case, and Johnny Burke, Georgetown's intercollegiate champion, in the other.

In fact, the first round couplings established few noteworthy engagements other than sending the two Canadians—C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, a one-time champion, and Joe Thompson—against each other in an intra-mural scrap.

Draws Big 10 King.

Defending Champion Johnny Goodman, who continued his calm course through the qualifying yesterday with a 76 and 154 total, drew Sid Richardson, the Big 10 champion who was one of seven competitors out of 11 with 160's who reached the first match play round through a playoff.

SHOOTS GOOD GOLF, TOO

Art Fovarque of the Coolridge golf course spends most of his time catering to other golfers, but he also can handle the implements. He turned in a 35 the other day, his best of the year.

Touring Scribe Says Ohio Unjustly Handicapped

By JIM EMERSON

COLUMBUS (AP) Inside dope, pepped hot from camps of the Bucks 1938 Big Ten gridiron foes, is served up by Bernie Swanson of the Minneapolis Star, pausing at Ohio State on his airplane swing around the conference.

The conference championship competition will be real tight. Every club will win and lose at least one game. . . . Player strength spread most evenly in years . . . Even Chicago gives off winning confidence . . .

Here are individual training camp highlights . . . Indiana . . . Big surprise Bo McMillin is pointing for Ohio State . . . which makes him all-even with Francis Schmidt who has the same respect for the Hoosiers who invade Ohio Stadium in the curtain raiser Oct. 1. . . . Bo wants to prove that 1937 smasheroo over Ohio State was no fluke . . . and he's got the sophomores and veterans to do it . . . Although the Kabbalo-Kaplanoff aerial circus may have a few things to say about that . . . with footballs. . . .

Northwestern . . . will showbana. . . . Fritz Crisler has inherited excellent experienced material, especially linemen, at Michigan. . . . The Urbana words are, The Illini are much better. . . .

Bernie dropped a few tips on the teams that doesn't meet and Herr Schmidt can be thankful for not meeting Minnesota and Wisconsin, at least . . . Gophers morale has been restored after player dissension last year. . . . Look like that 1934 steam-roller which is description aplenty. . . . Harry Struhldreher, starting his third season as Badger coach, on the spot this year . . . but has the best "dark horse" entry in the league. . . . Iowa definitely rebuilding and getting better . . . Probably won't get out of second division this year. . . .

How about our Bucks, Bernie? . . . Ohio State has been unjustly handicapped as favorites by the "outside critics." . . . Bernie is one who does NOT pick Mr. Schmidt's gang to take the title. . . . Too tough a schedule and too much line rebuilding . . . all of which should spur those Bucks upward and onward. . . .

MARKET SLICES LOSSES, KEEPS EYE ON EUROPE

Rallies to Recover Part of Ground Lost in Yesterday's Panicky Selling.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK — (AP) — Wall street fought a losing fight against the spectre of war in the stock market today. An early price boomlet was swept away in a mid-afternoon selling rush that left prices down as much as $3 or so a share for many trading leaders.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The stock market rallied today from yesterday's panicky selling on the Sudeten ultimatum to the Czech government.

An initial buying wave enabled leaders to recover about half of the 2 to 6 point losses of the preceding session, and the high-speed ticker dropped a minute behind. A point or more of the early gains were lost later in the forenoon.

Largest gains were chalked up by the hard-pressed leaders in yesterday's wide-open last hour break. Santa Fe, DuPont, Briggs, Sears Roebuck, U. S. Rubber and DuPont were up 3 or more points at one time, while Case spurted 4 at the opening. Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, Chrysler, Loew's, Montgomery Ward, Union Carbide, Kennecott, Macy and International Harvester showed extreme gains of 2 or more.

All of these gave up a good portion of their early advances before the noon hour, then met support as the general list settled into a quiet and narrow price range.

Domestic developments continued to be disregarded by Wall street in its anxiety over the critical foreign situation. Phelps-Dodge marked up the price of domestic copper ⅛-cent to 10¼ cents a pound, with other producers following suit later in the day. This brought a substantial run-up in copper future quotations.

PAM—Next! By A. W. Brewerton

THE MYSTERY STILL CONTINUING, PAM IS TELLING THE COLONEL ABOUT IT.
AND LAST NIGHT CAME A GORGEOUS BOX OF AMERICAN BEAUTIES, UNIDENTIFIED EXCEPT BY THE SAME NOTATION THAT THE SENDER IS A GREAT ADMIRER OF MINE!
WELL! —AND YOU'VE NO SUSPICIONS?
NO, COLONEL, I'M CERTAIN NOW IT'S NONE OF MY CLOSE FRIENDS! I'M WONDERING IF I OUGHT TO ACCEPT THE GIFTS —MIGHT BE FROM SOME ONE I WOULDN'T CARE TO HAVE GIVE ME THINGS!—
I'VE AN IDEA YOU'LL HEAR BEFORE LONG — JUST A SORT OF BUILD-UP, TO AROUSE YOUR INTEREST, I'D SAY!
MAYBE SO! HE HAS ME WONDERING NOW WHAT'LL BE NEXT!
HA! HA! THERE YOU ARE!—JUST WHAT HE'S AFTER!
AND, SPEAKING OF "NEXT" —IT WASN'T FAR OFF — PAM HAD SCARCELY RETURNED TO HER DESK WHEN—
ANY ANSWER, PLEASE?
WHY— I DON'T KNOW — LET'S SEE!
AN ENVELOPE ADDRESSED TO HER IN THE SAME HAND AS THAT OF THE GIFTS!

FRANK LASHES AT NEW DEAL IN OHIO ADDRESS

'Failed to Deliver,' He Says of Administration; Blasts at 'Shameless' Politics.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS, O.—Charging that the New Deal has "failed utterly to deliver," Dr. Glenn Frank, former president of the University of Wisconsin, told the Republican state convention today in his keynote address that the Republican party must offer a program to "lift and make secure the living standard of the millions."

Frank, chairman of the Republican national program committee, said the party must be motivated by "a determination to put a solid foundation of workable policies under the driver for higher and more secure living standards which any government that expects to survive must make its supreme objective."

Blasts At 'Politics.'

"It is to the credit of the present administration," Frank said, "that it has emphasized the place of the millions in the concern of government. It is to its everlasting discredit that it has shamelessly played politics with the needs of the millions; that it has persisted in hastily - conceived, recklessly-financed an ineffectively-administered policies; that it has aroused perhaps to the danger point a mass of suspicion, hatred and hostility.

"The New Deal has failed utterly to deliver Its words and its deeds have gone in opposite directions."

He attacked heavy government indebtedness, rising prices, and federal bureaucracy. He accused the New Deal of seeking to convince the voters "that it alone is concerned with social and human values."

He said the Republicans "must smash that picture of Republicanism."

"And there is just one way we can smash and that is with a program that really works, a program that puts all America back at work."

Frank said he was speaking as an individual and not as a representative of the views of the program committee.

PLANT'S STILL AN 'EXPERIMENT'

Sewer Technician Says 2 or 3 More Months Necessary to Tell If Design's Okay.

gineers from the Doerr company, which installed the equipment.

One of the three aerator units is being operated as specified in the plant's design. On the other two, some of the blades have been taken off the aerating paddles, and the direction of the paddles reversed, at the suggestion of Doerr engineers.

Sotherland, before his resignation, claimed that the motors which drive the paddles, of five horsepower each, were not heavy enough to turn the paddles against the air stream when the specified amount of air was used.

Turner said yesterday that he held the belief that the maximum amount of air, .8 cubic foot per gallon of sewage, was insufficient for complete treatment.

Collier pointed out that George B. Sowers, Cleveland, who designed the plant had been informed of the difficulties. Turner said he also had written to Sowers two weeks ago, asking him to visit the plant. Sowers replied that he would come to Mansfield as soon as possible.

Mayor Claude M. Hunter, meanwhile, stated flatly that the city did not intend to spend any more money on the plant, and expressed the hope that the Doerr company would be able to "get the bugs out" of the operation. He said he was confident that the company would take whatever steps were necessary to remedy the trouble, since he was under the impression that the company had a special interest in the Mansfield plant because it used both compressed air and paddles in its aeration process.

Other plants, he said, used either paddles or air, but he said he knew of no other plants where both were used. For this reason, the Doerr company has more than a usual interest in seeing that its equipment worked properly.

Collier, in commenting on the difficulties at the plant said that some of the trouble had been traced to the fact that about 800 gallons of skim milk had been dumped into the sewer system daily.

He said he understood that the milk had been dumped by two Mansfield dairies, and that a request was to be made of these firms to get rid of such milk in some other manner.

He explained that milk strongly resists sewage plant treatment. Other cities confronted with the same problem have prevailed on dairies to make other disposition of waste milk.

Hogan said Mrs. Sekerak, who had received $2,000 in life insurance, quarreled in a beer parlor last night with a friend who she had rejected in favor of another suitor.

FINED IN BUTLER

Woman Admits Violation of State Barber Code.

Charged with barbering without a license, Mrs. Mildred Oswald, Butler, pleaded guilty before Justice of the Peace C. P. Secrist and was fined $25 and costs in Butler last night.

Mrs. Oswald was arrested on a charge filed by Norman R. Coslett, inspector for the state board of barbers examiners, who said that the woman was conducting a shop in her home and did not have a state license.

Coslett explained that the state licensed barbers for the protection of the public and that one of the requirements of the law which was rigidly enforced was that all barbers immerse all tools in a sterile solution before using on each patron.

He said this precaution was taken to prevent exposing persons to communicable diseases which might otherwise be contracted by the tools.

The inspector also pointed out that all barbers were required to keep their licenses conspicuously displayed in their shops and asked the public to report to the board any unlicensed barbers.

ASHLAND DEBT FIGURES DROP TO RECORD LOW

$22,955 to Be Retired Next Year to Clean Bond Slate, Commissioners Say.

ASHLAND—No provision for general debt had to be made when Ashland county commissioners approved the county budget for the coming year. With all the county's general bonds having been retired, a balance of $1,618.69 exists in the general bond fund.

Expenditure for general bonds in 1936 was $40,660.72 with an overdraft of $1,060.51 and the following year $33,677.50 with an overdraft of $384.81.

In 1938 general bonds took $11,862.50 with a $1,618.69 balance remaining. The county's only debt charged against real estate is for courthouse bonds which will require $22,955 next year. It is estimated that in 1939 general fund expenditures will be about $5,000 less than this year.

For next year it is estimated that the total general fund requirements will be $195,522.40. The commissioners have asked a levy of $131,874.17 from general taxation.

SUDETENS AND CZECHS BATTLE WITH BULLETS

Guns Blaze as Nazi Adherents Fight Soldiers; Shots Set Off Bloody Clash.

on the police station declared that the first shot was not aimed at the crowd but was fired by a gendarme named Bartosch at his sergeant.

According to the gendarme, Bartosch was angered because the sergeant, who was a Slovak, refused to give the order to open fire when the disturbance started.

Czech troops earlier had put down a serious outbreak in the border village of Schwaderbach, not far from Eger, today and authorities claimed to be in firm control.

The government took decisive action in the Schwaderbach incident, issuing an ultimatum to 1,000 Sudeten Germans who besieged local gendarmerie in their headquarters in the center of the village.

Troops surrounded the town and the attackers were ordered to surrender their arms by a specified time or be routed by tear gas. They surrendered.

The government, meanwhile, entertained hope that negotiations with the Sudetens, which had been formally declared off by the Sudetens, might be resumed.

This hope was held in spite of the fact that Konrad Henlein, Sudeten fuehrer, had announced that the Sudeten commission named to negotiate with the Czech government for the right of self rule had been dissolved, bringing about a complete breakdown in efforts to solve the bitter, bloody dispute over autonomy rights, since there was no machinery left on the Sudeten side for further discussion.

At Prague, reports said, that Ernst Kundt, chief Sudeten negotiator, was on his way with Gustav Peters, also a negotiator, to the capital to talk with the government.

It was understood the purpose of the visit was primarily to discuss with the government the Sudeten demand for withdrawal of martial law.

The government had rejected the six-hour ultimatum of the Sudeten party, demanding removal of martial law from eight Sudeten towns and the delegation of police powers in the Sudeten area to local authorities.

A Sudeten spokesman said: "Our ultimatum was final. We shall not resume negotiations with the government until extraordinary measures are withdrawn."

The reply of the government was that extraordinary measures would be maintained until calm was restored in the Sudeten area.

This was hardened when the government received rports that three Czech gendarmes and one Sudeten German had been killed in disorders last night.

The situation was now desperate, but hope that something would happen to break the deadlock between the government and the Sudeten party was not abandoned.

Viscount Runciman, Britsh minorities adviser, was trying to reestablish contact between the government and the Germans. He sent his two chief aides to Carlsbad, where they telephoned Sudeten leaders her and at Asch.

Secondly, the government made it plain that it wanted to negotiate with the Sudeten party. It was understood that the government would welcome a Sudeten committee to Prague, and that it was ready to ameliorate the state of martial law in certain parts of the Sudeten country provided that peace and order were restored and maintained.

There was a cabinet meeting late last night. The capital was quiet, its appearance normal. All demonstrations were banned.

In the Sudeten area, the temper of the people was angry.

It was asserted officially that at Krumau, Sudetens yesterday stoned a police car and that police, fighting back with their truncheons, arrested 25. It was asserted that revolvers, daggers and clubs were found on the men arrested and held under civil law.

The Sudeten party closed its headquarters here as a sign of protest against the government's curt rejection of its ultimatum. It also withdrew its eight basic demands for solution of the minorities problem.

the Prospect school, and H. A. Bruce, another board member, at the Woodland meeting.

D. O. Meese, a staunch backer of the program, will talk on the bond issue Friday morning at an assembly of Senior high school pupils in the school auditorium.

Registrations continued to pour in at the board of elections office, indicating unusual interest in the bond election. The deadline for registering for the special election is 6:30 p. m. today.

U. S. READY FOR 'SHOCK' OF WAR

Business and Finance Better Prepared Than in 1914, Leaders Disclose.

Europe may find the answer in the following summary of Wall Street banking and governmental opinion:

1. A general European war probably would be an immediate shock to the financial and business world, as it was in 1914.

2. The American financial system is infinitely better equipped to brace itself and stand up under that shock than it was in 1914. Adequate machinery now exists for swift and effective handling of every financial crisis likely to arise. Furthermore, the impact of the shock has been at least partially softened by anticipation—a condition which did not exist in 1914.

3. American business and agriculture probably would not receive an immediate set-back of the severity of that in 1914 and probably would not pocket profits of the scale of 1916-1918 because of four factors: the vastly greater advance preparation for war today; the depreciated credit status of major European nations; the neutrality laws, and the Johnson act prohibiting loans to nations which have defaulted on previous obligations. In the end, popular sentiment is expected to determine the effectiveness of these elements—a factor completely unpredictable today.

Far reaching fundamental changes have been made in the U. S. financial system since 1914.

The nation's gold reserves exceed $13,000,000,000.

Excess reserves of federal reserve system member banks amount to nearly $3,000,000,000—a sum capable of manifold expansion to meet credit demands as they arise.

The currency and credit system is thus, and by reason of a number of other factors, capable of swift expansion to meet almost any conceivable domestic requirements which might follow outbreak of war.

Federal deposit insurance forestalls the likelihood of the uneasiness which played a part in the anxiety of depositors in 1914 when almost anybody could run a bank.

'HALF-HOLIDAY' HITS ACTIVITIES

Extra-Curricular Program at Simpson Threatened by Half-Day Sessions.

accommodated 325 pupils, were condemned as a fire hazard and the department called on the school board to comply "at once" in vacating them.

Dotson said the "arrangement was working out as well as could be expected under the circumstances."

Replying to charges that John Simpson was closed as "a campaign move" for the school bond issue, Supt. W. L. Miller pointed out today that the Mansfield board of education had no control over the closing and merely complied with a state order.

"No one connected with the schools here had anything to do with the closing order," he said, "and in view of the state's ruling, it would be dangerous to continue classes in the condemned rooms for even one day longer than necessary."

An inspector who visited the junior high building last month, described the third floor as "just an attic" and a "firetrap."

The new class schedule, effective today at the school, requires all of the pupils in the 8-A classes, all ninth grade pupils and two 8-B classes to meet in the morning, leaving the building at 11:53 a. m.

All seventh grade pupils and most of the 8-B classes will meet in the afternoon from 12:10 to 4:03 p. m. Dotson said.

Study periods will be eliminated at the school and class periods will be shortened to enable teachers to include all the regular curriculum in the day's schedule.

1,413 ENROLL

Total Sets New Record for Shelby Schools.

SHELBY—A record enrollment of 1,413 students today had registered at the Shelby public schools according to the official tabulation completed by Supt. C. G. Keck.

Last year only 1,300 students were enrolled. Of this number, 730 are girls and 698 boys, Keck pointed out. In the high school there are 733 students as compared with less than 500 last year.

In the elementary schools only 683 students are registered, Keck said, due to the transfer of about 250 students in the seventh and eighth grades from Central school to the high school building. At Central school there are 429 students Grant school, 134 and Hayes school, 120.

HELP STOMACH DIGEST FOOD
Without Laxatives—and You'll Eat Everything from Soup to Nuts

The stomach should digest two pounds of food daily. When you eat heavy, greasy, coarse or rich foods or when you are nervous, hurried or chew poorly—your stomach pours out too much fluid. Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel sour, sick and upset all over.

Doctors say never take a laxative for stomach pain. It is dangerous and foolish. It takes those little black tablets called Bell-ans for Indigestion to make the excess stomach fluids harmless, relieve distress in 5 minutes and put you back on your feet. Relief is so quick it is amazing and one 25c package proves it. Ask for Bell-ans for Indigestion.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1938.

Democracy could not succeed in a country in which a majority voted to let the government keep them.

It would be too bad for people to get the idea that a thing must be wrong just because President Roosevelt advocates it.

The strangest thing about what we call modern civilization is the inability of organized society to put itself to useful work.

'Purge' Attempt Fails In Maryland.

ACTION of Maryland Democrats in re-nominating their Senator Millard E. Tydings, over the strong objections of President Roosevelt, was not unexpected, all impartial sources of information from the state having forecast this outcome.

Marked as a victim of the Roosevelt "purge," Senator Tydings was denounced by the President as a "betrayer" of the New Deal and full administration strength was thrown to the support of David J. Lewis, principal opponent of Tydings in Monday's primaries.

Thus did the Democratic voters of Maryland join with those of a number of other states in expressing intent to do their own deciding as to state candidates, instead of submitting to dictation by Mr. Roosevelt, speaking either as President or as "head of the Democratic party."

Tydings is another of the United States senators who felt it his duty to think for himself rather than being bound to support of the entire New Deal program as promulgated by President Roosevelt.

Unusual bitterness was injected into the Maryland pre-primary campaign, stirred to boiling point by President Roosevelt's personal entrance into the state for a speech in behalf of Lewis.

Whatever may continue to be the personal popularity of President Roosevelt, outcome of his attempted "purge" in various states has clearly evidenced disinclination on the part of a majority of Democrats to accept his dictation in the matter of choosing their candidates on the basis of 100 per cent loyalty to his New Deal policies—including his plans for government reorganization and packing the supreme court.

Eyes turn today toward Georgia, where Senator George is fighting, for the Democratic renomination against determined Roosevelt opposition. Senator George has been referred to by the President as "a reactionary who does not speak my language" and, as will be remembered, his defeat was urged in a Georgia speech in which the senator sat on the same platform.

What effect, if any, repudiation of his attempted "purge" will have on President Roosevelt's future policies is problematical—which is unfortunate, in view of the great power he holds to further delay steps toward sound recovery in this country.

Hitler's Power for Peace or War.

WHATEVER may be guessed as to prospects of an immediate war in Europe, or the likelihood of the United States eventually becoming involved in such a war, developments of the past few days must be regarded as having tended to bring on a crisis which in another few days—or hours—might easily be turned into actual warfare.

Nor can rational conduct on the part of such a person as Adolf Hitler be depended upon to ease a situation for which his past conduct and recent inflammatory utterances must be held responsible.

In this instance the powder keg is provided by the war-born state of Czechoslovakia, with its many nationalities, and its alleged mistreatment of Sudeten Germans as a pretext for impending aggression by Hitler's Germany.

While complete understanding of the situation existing in Czechoslovakia is difficult, from this distance and in the face of conflicting reports, it seems clear that Hitler's course can mean nothing other than survival of a dream that Germany's "destiny" is complete domination of central and southeastern Europe and that the conquest of the Czechs is the next logical step, following the annexation of Austria.

Most important among the people of the United States at this time, it would appear, is to retain a temperate attitude toward the whole European situation—but also to regard it as an obligation of this nation to be prepared for any eventualities, always keeping in mind that power-mad dictators cannot be depended upon for action in accord with what might be expected of civilized beings.

Fame's Blight.

POOR DOUGLAS CORRIGAN! From recent news accounts, the bonny Irish lad who flew the Atlantic with such a combination of skill, courage and humor, and then flew just as blithely and quietly into the heart of America, is languishing.

He obviously wearies of an endless round of parades, banquets, speeches and flowers. An overdose of fame brings spiritual indigestion. Too much public attention may sour a good man's life.

The best thing that could happen to Corrigan right now is to get a good job in some airplane factory and stay there, defying all chambers of commerce, journalists, showmen and bathing beauties, to haul him out.

What Children Like.

A RECENT questionnaire asked what kinds of fruit children prefer. Nearly 10,000 children replied. The results should interest growers and dealers.

Of six important fruits, the largest number, 30 per cent, chose apples. Oranges got a 20 per cent vote, prunes 18 per cent, peaches 12 per cent, grapefruit 10 per cent and raisins 9 per cent.

Apples are also known, from previous inquiries, to be the favorite fruit of American grown-ups. Their appeal is evidently secure. So is that of oranges, which appeal in color and form as well as taste.

Generally speaking, fruits that people like as children they may be expected to continue liking.

The New York orchardist who developed an apple that tastes like a cucumber may now give his attention to catering to the taste for green persimmons.

Watching Trends

While Preston Grover is on vacation, persons prominent in the official and political life of the nation and in journalism are conducting this column. Today's guest column is written

By CHARLES NUTTER
Associated Press Correspondent Recently In Madrid.

WASHINGTON — A visitor on the Aragon front in Spain last spring was amazed and alarmed to find himself walking with a guide through trenches only knee-deep, and the enemy lines 300 yards away.

As he dived for cover, his officer guide turned to reassure him by saying:

"That's all right, we don't shoot at each other up here."

The visitor thereupon proceeded with a three-day survey of fortifications in that sector during which he avows he didn't hear a rifle shot fired "in anger."

In fact the story was current, he said, that a rifle shot was used as an air raid warning. He couldn't confirm that officers, instead of confirm that oficers, instead of living at the front, lived leisurely in homes several miles behind the lines, and came to the front during the day much as a business man would go to his office.

Beware of the Enemy.

ANOTHER visitor to that front once reported an arrow sign, like a highway marker, pointing across country, with the legend, "Enemy Lines, Three Kilometers, DANGER."

Along this front, it might be added, troops planted and cultivated flower gardens between the lines during the summer of 1937.

That's all changed now, however, for when General Franco looking for a weak spot this spring, hit this sector, his troops weren't stopped until they were swimming in the Mediterranean and Loyalist Spain had again been divided in half.

No-Man's-Land may be 10 miles or more across, the lines consisting only of outposts, an artillery piece, or a machine gun crew commanding a valley. On one occasion the Loyalist cavalry turned cowboy temporarily and rounded up 6,000 head of cattle grazing in "No-Man's-Land" on the southern front. Not a shot was fired at them.

Another time in Esthamadura, two non-commissioned officers from Insurgent Spain deserted to the Loyalists in a high-powered American motor car, riding up in style to surrender and to be greeted joyously because they had the wit to bring along thousands of cigarets to the tobaccoless Loyalist outpost.

When isolated Asturias fell last October a number of Loyalist troops made their way unmolested through the enemy lines, across 250 miles of enemy country and more enemy lines, and rejoined the Loyalists at Madrid.

Fishing for Food.

TROOPS often hunt and fish between the lines, not for sport but for fresh food which is always welcome. Cases of peasants tilling their soil in comparative peace between the so-called lines have been reported at various times.

The reason is obvious. Spain is divided into two enemy groups by more than 1,000 miles of lines . . . three times the front line territory in France and Belgium during the World war which was manned by probably 10 times as many men. Even in France there were quiet sectors with weeks of inactivity.

In Spain only key highways and positions are heavily entrenched and fortified. Even manning these fortifications requires so many men that neither side has large numbers of offensive troops. That is one factor prolonging the war. Neither side has a force free to strike with overpowering strength at a vital spot.

Fraternizing across the lines despite every effort to stop it is reported on a limited scale.

Propaganda by loudspeaker is used to convince the other troops they are fighting for the wrong cause and should desert. These methods reap some rewards. There is constant desertion back and forth on a small scale, such deserters often bringing important military information. The enemy invariably starts minor action when the loudspeakers go into play, attempting to drown out the voice.

Ofter this spreads the alarm to nearby sectors and before long there is heavy firing on a miles-long front, none knowing just what brought on the action.

Abandoned Pets.

This is the season of abandoned pets, principally cats and dogs. The greatest offenders are those who own or rent summer cottages and, when the vacation period is over, pack up their personal property and start home leaving behind their pets of the summer.

The havoc these animals cause when turned loose to shift for themselves can hardly be estimated. It takes them a little time to revert from domesticity to the wild, but hunger soon arouses their dormant wild instincts and they become killers.

Abandoned dogs annually kill more sheep and poultry than any other creatures. Once this becomes a habit the death of the dogs is all that will stop these depredations. Most of these sheep-killers when killed are without identification marks and usually without a license tag.

The abandoned cat problem presents even a greater menace than dogs. They soon become ruthless bird killers and constitute a great nuisance around farms and throughout game covers.—Detroit News.

MARYLAND ALSO TAKES A SWING

The Human Side of the News

—By EDWIN C. HILL

THE world has wagged along considerably since the days when Archbold was advising the Standard Oil company to "buy some good news agency, like the Associated Press." Big business, whether or not it has a soul, seems to be getting a lot more sense and a developing realization of responsibility to the public. Typical of new corporate leanings and attitudes is the address of Arthur W. Page, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, at the Seventh International Management Congress in Washington.

His interest was substantially that of Archbold, thirty or more years ago—how big business was to meet hostile and possibly misinformed public opinion—and his subject was "Fundamentals of a Public Relations Commission." A comparison of Mr. Archbold's statement before a senate committee and Mr. Page's today gives ground for encouragement. There is much less wild-eyed trust-busting than in those days and there certainly is disclosed in Mr. Page's address an understanding that successful corporations must deserve public confidence.

"The less confidence the public has in big business," said Mr. Page, "the less freedom the public will give big business. And as you restrict its freedom, you restrict its ability to serve.

"It is, therefore, to the interests of both that there be established a state of confidence concerning the relations between big business and the public.

"Big business has to meet the political test. The political test comes down to this: If the reputation of big business is good enough with the public, no one representing the public—whether in press, politics or any other capacity—will be hostile to it.

"Because of the ordinary human suspicions of size, big business will be closely scrutinized. It will have to be a better citizen than if it were smaller. It will have to be good enough to have public confidence."

DOES the Constitution make a corporation a "person"? That has been the nub of the argument in much of the contention between big business and the government. The trust-busters have contended that slick corporation lawyers eased this into the Constitution in the dark of the moon.

Supreme Court construction of the clause guaranteeing life and property the protection of "due process of law" is still a field of heated contention and probably will be for a long time to come. In the meantime, there arises the possibility that big business may act like a "person," even a well-behaved person, and if that goes far enough the legal metaphysics of its constitutional status may become less and less important.

THAT might go for the government, too, which has swung between complacency toward monopoly and a tendency to regard anything more imposing than a peanut stand as essentially suspect, if not actually criminal. And here, too, there is ground for hope. This monopoly study now going at Washington is unique in several details. It does not stem from the "little America" attitude of the era of the elder La Follette, which was determined to peel everything down to bantam weight. Senator O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, its originator and sponsor, insisted that the inquiry would be an objective study and not a new drive on big business.

One may keep at least a couple of fingers crossed, but along come Messrs. Adolph Berle, Jr., and Thurman Arnold and make some rather surprising statements for men of their New Deal background and associations. Participating in the inquiry, they say big business is not necessarily bad just because it is big, and they admit there is a lot they don't know about the problem of keeping the efficiency of large-scale operation and at the sime time safeguarding public rights and needs.

Since all approaches to this question from either side always have been emotional, this unemotional and rational consideration of what we don't know and what we ought to know is more or less without precedent. To this bystander, it looks hopeful.

Political Careers For Youth, Diplomat Tells Way To Start

"Never was there a more opportune time than now for a young man to begin a political career," declares Meredith Nicholson, United States minister to Nicaragua, in a challenging article on "Politics: A Field for Young Men" in the current Rotarian Magazine. "The next decade is certain to be one of the most interesting and most important in history" in this field.

"As to the choice of a party affiliation, that's your personal affair," says the diplomat author. "I suggest, however, that it is not absolutely necessary for you to enroll in the party of your grandfathers, or even of your wife's relations. Nor is it wholly wise to align yourself with a party which, at the moment, may seem invincible, in the belief that it can never lose."

Young men in politics should do their own thinking, Mr. Nicholson insists, rather than sacrificing principles in order to "keep regular." A sense of humor, tolerance, personality, and the ability to listen will contribute to the success of those who aspire to political leadership. "If you are a snob," he warns, "boil the poison out of your system before you attend your first precinct meeting.

"If I were counselling a serious young aspirant as to how to begin a political career, I should advise him first of all to make a study of some phase of government administration. And I should suggest a municipal or county unit as a good beginning. Here the abuses are often so flagrant and the need so great that his education in politics cannot fail to proceed prosperously."

The multiplication of the functions of government in recent years makes it desirable that a public servant should have a scientist's special knowledge in as many fields as possible, Mr. Nicholson believes, for "there is not merely a tendency now toward planned scientific administration; we have reached the point where we must have it. The scale of things is so vast that we can't turn engineering and construction jobs over to amateurs."

"Alexander Hamilton was well launched on his extraordinary career at 22," he points out to those young men who feel that their youth is against them. "John Randolph was elected to the house of representatives at 26, and became leader in that body. James Madison, one of the greatest of those who gave form and direction to our institutions, was marked for a distinguished career at 24. And Henry Clay, at 22, was a member of the Kentucky constitutional convention and was elected to the United States senate before he had attained the legal age prescribed for that dignity. "Brains and character, not years, count."

"Shillelah" Argument.

"We have been having an argument," writes a reader, "over the correct spelling, significance and origin of shillelah. Will you help us settle it?"

Shillelah, traditional and favorite walking stick of an Irishman, is also written shillaly, shillalah and shilelly; also, it is better to have an argument over than with it.

In general usage, shillelah stands for "cudgel," though it has been applied to any club-like weapon.

Shillelah is straight Irish, in which tongue it meant first an oaken sapling, and then the bludgeon fashioned from it. St. Patrick probably used one to drive the snakes out of the Emerald Isle.

It really ought to be shillelagh; that is the name of the town in County Wickloy, Eire, famous for its oaks, after which we have the word.

Lack of Motive Makes Life Dreary.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SICK of yourself, sister? Feel you're shelved for keeps? Then get that September issue of Harper's Bazaar, and cast your eye over as brave and blithe a bit of writing as ever was done for the lass whose ears are dragging and whose pride is all set for a rummage sale.

"THE ENERGISTS" — that's what Esther Arthur calls her article — which is merely another name for those Galvanic Gals who've so often set history to swingtime in these United States and left the mark of their Goget-tem Tempo on the American character. Beginning, of course, with that No. 1 Energizer, Galvanizer, Speed Demon and General Whooper-up—Eleanor Roosevelt.

But Mistress Eleanor, says Esther, is not merely an individual tornado — or the bomb behind Franklin's throne. She's the symbol of all that high-hearted sisterhood who've taken life in their stride and refused to hide their light under any man-made bushel. Now, under the wizardry of the Arthur pen, out they troop—chin up, head high and armed for bear!

First, prim curls belying her wicked wallop, one sees small Harriet Beecher Stowe, whose inflammatory "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was to strike the shackle from the Southern slave—as, years later, Frances Willard's Prohibition spirit, marching on, was to strike the cocktail from the national souse, padlock the bars, and be responsible for heaven only knows how many oceans of bathtub gin. Then Susan B. Anthony, arming Womanhood with the ballot, which the sweet thing promptly turned into a sub-machine gun. And Carrie Nation, smashing her daily dozen of saloons with the well-known axe.

Or those others, seemingly far removed in motive but identical in Giddiup—Isidora Duncan and Loie Fuller, dancing their way to fame, tincturing our cold Puritan blood with the hot, sweet magic of rhythm. And, in our own day, that strangely vibrant mystic, Helen Keller, who sees those shining heights denied our earthy eyes.

Valkyries, every one of them, riding, as well as rousing, the fury and the storm to serve their mission. No male, however militant or plain pouty ever hurled such thunderbolts of purpose against our human apathy or quickened drab existence to such breathless ecstasy as did these plain and often burdened women with their indomitable will.

And therein lies the story within the story of Esther Arthur's "Energists." For what they did, other women can do, have done. They were not rare or gifted natures, unusually endowed with beauty and wit for the great roles they were to play. Most were plain, few were talented, some were downright dumb. But they had within them that gift which may transfigure even the dullest life and fill it with force and flame — they could dramatize themselves and their desires.

"NOTHING MAKES LIFE DREARY EXCEPT LACK OF MOTIVE"—said Frances Willard . . . unwittingly revealing the spark that fired her own life and that of her vigorous kind. Nor does any "Who's Who" contain the full record of those sister Energists. Their name is legion. There is not an American village, however remote, which has not felt their crisp, commanding Umph! Theirs were the tongues which drove the Covered Wagon Cavalcade . . . theirs the tantrums which forced their amiable but lazy mates to dig the sewers, lay the water lines and oust the shanties from "across the railroad tracks."

Demanding a sewer system may not land you in the Encyclopedia Brittanica but it certainly makes life lively while you're at it. Which, when you come to think of it, is just about the acme of success, after all. Who cares what they do with your dust when you're dead . . . it's the dust you kick up while you're living that counts!

Always I shall remember the little brown wren of a woman who was once my neighbor. Uneducated, untravelled, plain as an old shoe, she had yet a distinction which made life glamorous and lent her tiny form the dignity of a conquering queen—SHE COULD MAKE THREE SCHOOL DRESSES IN A DAY. Out of a life devoid of charm or significance, she had found a power and purpose for herself that lifted her above the common rut. Let the Circes circ--and the Juliets jule—SHE COULD MAKE THREE SCHOOL DRESSES IN A DAY.

So what's holding YOU?

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Until now I have been extremely chary about mentioning the New York World's Fair. There is a reason for this. But a railroad man in Oklahoma has taken me to task regarding this matter, and I can no longer look the other way.

"You are falling down on your obligations," he writes. "This is likely to be the greatest fair the world has ever known, and not one little word have you had to say about it. Why?"

Well, Mister, I'll tell you. I hate fairs. They leave me exhausted and my disposition ruined. They put cramps in my legs and spots before my eyes. There is nothing so appalling as the slow, tedious trek that carries a man through ten thousand exhibits. Married men tell me that shopping excursions with their wives is every bit as bad. I am pleased to doubt this. I have been on a few shopping expeditions myself. Of course they are awful. But nothing comparable to a jolly day of being choked by dust and walked to a frazzle as you try to make reason out of a bewildering maze of temples, arenas, administration buildings and shops.

WHEN I think of fairs I instinctively begin to nurse a grudge against the men responsible for them. And that is silly. It is unreasonable and unjust. But it is my nature to regard things in this light, and so I may as well admit that even now I have to take myself severely in hand and say: "Whoa there, Buster, no tantrums now," whenever Grover Whalen's name crosses my mind.

Mr. Whalen is an important man in New York. He is a courteous and affable gentleman. But in unthinking moments I feel a resentment against his name because the fair is definitely his baby. Make no mistake about that. He IS the fair.

And I think it will be a howling success. I will be howling myself, every time I have to go out there, but I think it will still be big stuff for those who enjoy fairs.

Once in Tennessee I attended a fair and had my pockets picked of $7. It was all the money I had.

Sometime later, as a cub reporter in Columbus, O., I attended another fair, and my pocket was picked of a week's salary—$30 this time. On another occasion my best friend attended a fair and got so much dust in his eyes, ears, nose and throat that he developed sinus trouble.

AND so I hope you get a whale of a kick out of the New York World's Fair. It's going to be a whizz. The only adjective worth a hoot in this town is "biggest." Everything here is the "biggest" you ever saw. And I'm sure the fair will measure up.

But, personally, I must continue to view with alarm. The prospects for 1939 are dreary indeed. I have already been warned by friends in various sections of the country that they intend to swoop down on me for protracted visits, so that we may "do" the fair together.

These letters leave me despondent, and a little desperate. There is no escape, no logical "out." Of course I could have my name taken from the directory, sublease my apartment, and take lodgings in a remote section of town. But I'm not the lucky sort. They would be sure to seek me out. And then I wouldn't even have any friends. This is what fairs have done and are doing to me.

A Farmer's Diary

Dried Corn.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE sun pours down its heat upon my head like August, goldenrod and asters, corn shocks, and hints of color in the forest trees, are signs of autumn that will not be denied.

In late spring, I planted Country Gentleman sweet corn, and hoped it might mature before frost. My wish is granted, and the heavy ears bear down the slender stalks. They have a great amount of silk, due to the number of grains on each cob . . . more than twice as many as on the straight row varieties, for Country Gentleman ears are filled with tiny irregular grains.

It would have been even better, but the only day we spent away from home, the cows from our pasture, which we rented, broke down the barnyard gate and headed straight for the sweet corn patch. A neighbor working near saw what had happened, and saved the day . . . and some of the corn. When I returned that night, I saw by the bright moonlight, what had taken place, and when the family had gone to bed I went out to investigate. My anger rose when I saw the tender, half grown stalks strewn all about, trampled and half eaten. In mental anguish, I called those ruthless cattle names, and wished for a chance to wreak vengeance on their hides . . . but the herd lay close together, peacefully chewing their cuds, as though in mockery of my seething feelings.

Today I plucked and husked the solidest ears, and carried a heaped up basket to the porch. We stripped off the silk, and felt the sticky surface of the grains, such as I have never found on other sweet corn. We dipped the ears in boiling water, then cut it from the cob, spread it thinly on an old white sheet, upon a flat roof in the sun, and covered it with new screenwire. After four or five days of clear weather, the corn will be dry enough to store away.

It always seems a pleasant task to me to provide our winter food with my own hands . . . . to feel when I sit down to a dish of rich, summery tasting corn, that we have been acquainted before it came upon my table . . . that I myself kept it young and delectable until this moment.

APPROVES TAX HIKE BUT WANTS CUT IN SPENDING

Veteran Republican Congressman Backs Dem Levy Hike If Expenditures Go Down.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Forecasting a deficit of close to $5,000,000,000 at the end of the present year, a Republican member of congress today approved Democratic proposals for an increase in taxes if coupled with reduction of federal expenditures.

Rep. Frank Crowther (R) of New York, veteran member of the house ways and means committee, who forecast the deficit, declared that a showdown is coming soon in congress on the issue of balancing the budget.

Tax Bill Certain.

While Democratic leaders in tax matters are divided on the question of raising taxes, Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee, has indicated that a new tax increase bill must be passed this winter Senator Brown (D) of Michigan, head of a special subcommittee, said a tax bill was certain

"It appears that the deficit at the end of the present fiscal year (June 30) will be nearer $5,000,000,000 than any other figure presented up to this time," said Crowther. "Business conditions which developed last September, will result in vastly decreased revenues from individual and corporation income taxes. The deficit will be aggravated by the increased spending program

"A showdown is coming in congress—we can't go on indefinitely in this manner. We must either cut expenses or raise taxes, or do both.

"I'd like to feel that congress will have the courage to face the situation in the coming session and figure out a remedy. We have just been putting off the evil day."

Third of County Corn Crop to Be Hybrid Varieties

More than one-third of the corn crop Richland county farmers will harvest this fall will be hybrid varieties, introduced here less than five years ago. County Agent George B. Ganyard said today.

Recognized as more resistant to adverse growing conditions than standard varieties, hybrid corn has increased rapidly in popularity in the county in the past two seasons, the county agent said.

Produced by inbreeding one variety until the defects are eliminated and then cross-breeding it with another similar strain, hybrid corn looks like ordinary varieties. It has deeper roots and more rugged stalks, however, and usually produces a better filled ear, Ganyard said.

Although a number of farmers in the county are growing hybrids, only five of them are producing seed. They are Leland Clever and Lester Lantz, Franklin township, Lawrence Clever, Springfield township; the Mansfield reformatory farm, and Paul Culler, Monroe township.

DEATHS OF TWO RULED ACCIDENT

Brothers Killed As Groundhog Hunter Shoots Into Thicket.

BELLEFONTAINE —(AP)— Two brothers were dead today of bullet wounds suffered in what Coroner H. L. Mikesell termed an accidental shooting by Theodore Hildebrand, 18, who was hunting groundhogs.

The victims: Benjamin L. Nevers, 24, and Clarence, 21, the latter died early today. They were shot yesterday while lying on the ground watching a groundhog hole.

Mikesell, exonerating Hildebrand who was hunting with his father, William, said that it was entirely possible for the boy to have failed to notice the brothers in the dense thicket.

WARD'S MARK ANNIVERSARY

Observes First Birthday in New Location With Special Merchandising Event.

Observing its first anniversary in its new location at Third and Walnut streets, Montgomery Ward and company will open a special fall and winter merchandising event tomorrow.

Managing the Mansfield store is Joseph Blahnik who came to the city several months ago. A graduate of the University of Michigan where he was a football star, Blahnik has been with the Montgomery Ward organization 11 years. He was affiliated with stores at Louisville, Ky., Muskegon, Mich., before coming to Mansfield.

When he became manager of the Mansfield store, Blahnik inaugurated a new merchandising plan, designed to give Mansfield patrons merchandise and service equal to that provided by any Ward branch in the nation.

Blahnik said suggestions of patrons for improvements in the store would be welcome, since it is the organization's policy to co-operate with the city and its enterprises in every progressive movement.

Goods for the special anniversary sale have been purchased from leading wholesalers in the country with the intention of supplying merchandise of the better quality at prices that will appeal to buyers of all classes, Blahnik said.

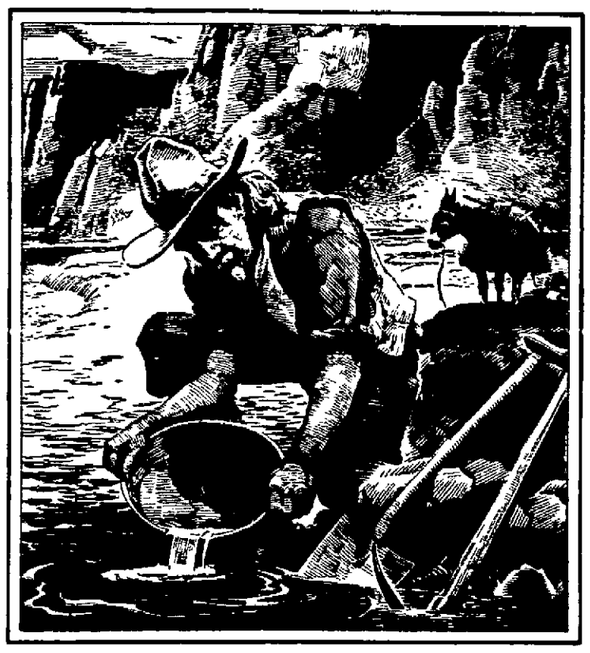
The '49rs set the pace for '39



To our forefathers, "panning for gold" meant daring and hard work — even at the plow... in the factory... at the old roll-top desk. They discovered that America would give generously — to those who could give and take.

Today we still have our frontiers... in commerce, industry, agriculture and science. They are stubborn. They resist ... but they yield—to those who have inherited the old-fashioned courage, vision and energy of our early pioneers. Other nations listen enviously as America continues to tell us, "There is opportunity for all."

CHAPTER 41.

It was good to be with Laurie again, even though the Court street room seemed darker and dingier than ever after the light and airiness of Noel's room on the third floor of the Garwood mansion.

Noel's thoughts were with Julian. He was sometimes enigmatic, she knew, but she could not help believing that his "important news" concerned Ruth Chester. There was some little hesitancy about the way Julian had spoken, also the fact that he had said it decidedly would affect their friendship. What else could he mean — except another girl, she asked herself despairingly.

Then she looked at Laurie and saw that she too looked sad. "You and Jimmy still are not seeing each other?" she asked.

Laurie shook her head. "It only seems to make things worse. I should have gone on and married Cointepas."

"No, no, Laurie," Noel said earnestly. "Some day things will come right for you and Jimmy. I'm sure of it."

The two girls talked for an hour or so. And then Mrs. Blarsom called Noel to the telephone. It was Julian. He said he couldn't get away. Then asked if she could manage to see him on Sunday. She told him she expected to be off for some time on Sunday, and would call him and let him know where she would be.

When Noel went back to the room, Laurie said, "He isn't coming, is he?" She asked the question as if she knew the answer and understood the situation even before Noel nodded.

"Something happened," Noel said dispiritedly, sinking into the wooden rocker.

"I'm afraid it's Ruth Chester again," Laurie said, a flash of anger in her eyes.

Noel sat up quickly. "Why?"

"She probably made some excuse to keep him from coming. You see, she evidently thinks—" Laurie faltered, "or maybe it's true, but I simply don't believe it, and you—you mustn't either."

"Laurie, what are you talking about?"

"She just—just acts so possessive toward Doctor Paige lately, and —" Laurie hesitated again. "There may be a word of truth in it, Noel, but Ruth Chester told one of the waitresses at the De Luxe that she and Doctor Paige were engaged."

The color drained from Noel's face. That made it look more and more as if Julian's "important news" did concern Ruth Chester. He probably had meant to come and tell her the truth frankly, and then his courage had failed him—could that have been why he didn't come?

* * *

And then all the things Julian had said in regard to Ruth came back to emphasize the idea Noel had in mind. He had said that a marriage between himself and Ruth Chester would be most suitable. He had also said that Ruth always managed to get her own way about things.

"I think" Laurie began, almost as if reading Noel's thoughts, "if he does marry her, it will be because she probably has convinced him that she could help him in his career."

"Julian wouldn't marry a girl unless he loved her—or at least thought he did," Noel said with sudden returning confidence.

"She's probably got him hypnotized," Laurie suggested thoughtfully. "She could do it, all rght. She's full of tricks."

The two girls went to bed then. Noel was restless and slept very little. The next morning she looked so pale that Laurie felt worried. "I wish I hadn't told you that last night," she said regretfully. "It's maybe nothing in the world but idle talk. Ruth Chester doesn't hesitate to lie. We both know that."

"I expect it's the truth," Noel answered slowly. "I might as well be prepared for it."

But she found it hard to reconcile Julian's attitude toward her, while at the same time he might be expecting to marry another girl. Still, men were queer. The more you thought you understood them, the less you found you did. They were unknown quantities.

When Laurie left for work, Noel said, "Now, listen, honey, your love story can have a happy ending. You just keep your chin up and wait and see."

Laurie shook her head. "How can it when we're up against a stone wall?" But she did seem happier when she and Noel said goodby.

* * *

Noel started back to the Garwood home early, but before going on to the house, she decided to go past Stone Gate, her former home, and see if there could be any mail. She had been by once or twice before, to find a hastily scrawled letter from her aunt, and a few invitations. She wasn't expecting much mail, as nobody knew where she was.

But, surprisingly, there was a letter from her uncle. It read:

"Dear Noel: I am today depositing to your credit half the amount of the money you loaned me. Shall be able to return the balance in another three months. Am sending this on to Stone Gate as do not know your Paris address. Have a letter from Frankie but with her usual carelessness she forgot to mention it. Love to you both. Your devoted uncle."

So it looked as if the adventure automatically was ended The money had come just when she had about decided it was nc use to go on. She had won insofar as proving to Julian that she ddi have some fighting qualities of her illustrious grandfather. But so far as convincing Julian that she was different from the usual type of society girl—well, she was very far from having accomplished that. Julian evidently had had some curiosity as to how the thing would turn out. But beyond that—nothing.

Noel sighed. Frankie, her aunt, would come back before long. They would start traveling again, go anywhere, it didn't matter, chasing a silly rainbow they never would find.

* * *

But Noel wasn't yet quite ready to go back to the old life. There were a number of things to be done. And there still was her responsibility to little Betsy. She didn't know what she could do for her, but there must be something. At least she was going to try.

When she went into Betsy's room, it was to find the child flushed with fever. Noel felt that she should not have left her last night.

She went downstairs at once to see Mrs. Garwood. Hichens stopped her at the door of the woman's room. "Mrs. Garwood is still asleep," he said.

"I don't care if she is. I'm going to wake her," Noel exclaimed. She pushed past him and went in the room. Fay Garwood opened her eyes sleepily. "Go away and let me alone," she sad crossly.

"I came to tell you that Betsy is ill, that she must have a doctor," Noel said firmly. "She has fever."

"She often has fever," the woman said and added. "Forget it and leave me alone." She turned over on her side as if to go back to sleep.

"You are the most unnatural mother I ever saw," Noel suddenly exclaimed angrily. "Sometimes I don't even believe Betsy is your child"

Fay Garwood sat up, her face livid. "How dare you say a thing like that? How dare you?" she screamed.

Noel walked out. Hichens was outside listening, she found when she went through the door. She brushed past him without a word.

All that day Noel sat by the child's bedside, trying to decide what was best to do.

That night, after Betsy was at last asleep, Noel wrote a note to Julian, explaining about the child's condition, and telling him that she was thinking of bringing Betsy with her on Sunday when she would have her day off She hadn't decided exactly yet whether she would attempt it at this time or not. It depended on several things. But she asked Julian to remain in his office until 10 at least on Sunday night. And she would let him know definitely whether to expect her.

She wrote Julian the letter because she didn't dare phone him from the house. Then went out to mail it. The little newsboy was standing there in his usual place, a big pile of papers still unsold. Noel bought one, then remembering she had money again, she slipped a $10 bill into his hand.

Later, when she sat down to read the paper the first thing she saw was the announcement of Ruth Chester's engagement to Julian.

WE ASKED 1000 MEN TO RATE THIS WHISKEY
They said over $1.00 more* a quart than the price of Old Quaker—now 3 years old
"Smell it—taste it—take a drink of it," we asked 1,000 men, "then tell us what it's worth." None knew the whiskey was Old Quaker.
These 1,000 men—from twenty-two states—rated 3-year Old Quaker as worth an average of $1.39 more per quart than its actual retail price. That's mighty important to you.
But don't take the opinion of 1,000 men—make the trial yourself. It may show you how to cut your whiskey bills a third.
*Average price exactly $1.39 more a quart.
